India Launches Two New Pakistan Fronts

FLEE KASHMIR FIGHTING—Refugees from fighting between India and Pakistani in Chhamb sector of Kashmir carry belongings on their heads as they cross strategic bridge over Chenab river at Akhnur, 21 miles from Jammu, on way to safer territory. New Delhi Air Attack Repulsed

Gadra Falls, Six MilesFromBorder

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India launched two new army attacks into West Pakistan today after reporting Pakistani bombers tried to attack New Delhi but were driven off.

Defense Minister Y. B. Chavan told Parliament one Indian spearhead already was five miles into southeast Pakistan.

Advancing on Khaprapar

Reports reaching New Delhi said this force captured Gadra, six miles inside the frontier about 220 miles east of Karachi, Pakistan's main port and naval base. These accounts said the army was advancing toward Khaprapar, 15 miles inside Pakistan. The Defense Ministry could not confirm these reports.

Chavan said another force crossed the northern frontier near the sector in southwestern Kashmir where the Pakistani army invasion began a week ago. He said this attack was forcing Pakistani units in the Chhamb area of Kashmir to withdraw.

Thus India opened three fronts in West Pakistan, the third one being in the Lahore sector about 110 miles south of Chhamb.

Thrust Called Reprisal

Reports from Pakistan, however, said all Indian troops had been driven from Pakistani soil on the Lahore front.

A New Delhi spokesman said the thrust into West Pakistan in the southeast was in reprisal for a Pakistani naval bombardment of the port of Dwarka, about 240 miles down the coast from Karachi.

This aroused speculation that Karachi was the Indian target. Karachi is headquarters of the Pakistani navy.

An Indian announcement said the naval attack on Dwarka caused no damage of military significance and damage to civilian life and property was still being assessed.

However, Radio Pakistan claimed the naval shelling destroyed military and radar installations at a base at Dwakra from which it said air attacks on Krachi were being made.

The broadcast added that Indian air force planes attacked the Pakistani navy ships and the naval guns shot down some of the planes. It said the Pakistani ships suffered no losses.

Committee Named On Dust and Noise

Two measures to advance uptown urban renewal were adopted Tuesday night by the Common Council which also voted a tax anticipation note of $280,000 to continue city functions pending collection of state sums, back taxes and other money.

One measure on urban renewal opens the way for the city to gain a sum not to exceed $903,157 in state aid. The other involves a "cooperation agreement" for local "grants-in-aid" between the city and the Urban Renewel Agency in dealing with uptown urban renewal.

Other action included a report on recent studies of reapportionment and the naming of a committee to deal with complaints against operations at the Hudson Cement Corp. plant on North Street.

Committee Named

Recently elected Alderman-at-Large Robert Gallo, who had been Democratic alderman of the Ninth Ward, named Minority Leader James F. Howard (D) 10th Ward, Donald P. Tucker (R) Fourth Ward, and Raymond Armater (R) 11th Ward as the committee.

It was named after two East Kingston residents, Mrs. Ella Clausi and Lawrence McCauley, complaining of annoyance by dust, noise and offensive odor in the area.

Mrs. Clausi complained that the company had said from the start that it would operate "dust free' but as it has turned out it is 'free dust." She held that while the plant has means of abating dust it is not used sufficiently, but apparantly dust is kept down at times of inspection.

Early Hour Noise

Noise made by the unloading of coal in the early hours of morning and offensive odors were cited, and she held that the complaints go back to 1959. She carried newspaper reports to indicate that conditions were the same as they are now.

McCauly felt that there were laws 'on the books" to cope with the situation, including those affecting air pollution. He also complained of the unloading of coal, and felt that the council could be guided by existing law or take such steps as might be required.

Alderman William G. Davis (D-Lib.) 13th Ward, who is employed by the New York Central Railroad, indicating that he did not want to say anything concerning the other complaints, noted that the unloading of coal at the plant was not a daily occurance, but one that happened about every 10 days.

Two Decline

Majority Leader John Machione (R) 12th Ward, declined to serve on the special committee because he has relatives employed at the plant, and Alderman William Sinsabaugh (R) Fifth Ward said he could not serve on the committee because he is employed at the paint.

Mrs. Clausi and McCauley were introduced by Third Ward Suervisor John C. Sangaline, who with other supervisors had made an inspection tour of the plant. The Board of Supervisors had also been asked to investigate conditions at the plant and a committee was named.

Eric Hemphill, executive director of the Urban Renewal Agency, in explaining the state-aid UR measure to the aldermen wrote:

"The Uptown Urban Renewal Project, N. Y. R-121, has reached the stage at which the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency can file an application for financial assistance under the New York State Urban Renewal Assistance Program.

"Approval of the Common Council authorizing the Kingston UR Agency to file the application is required under state regulations.

"It is therefore requested that the Common Council adopt the enclosed resolution approving the filing of an application for state urban renewal funds in

79 Cases on Calendar

Gets Up to 5 Years For Ellenville Fire

A former Middletown man, Donald Casterlin, who was indicted for second degree arson for setting a fire to a room in the Park Hotel, Ellenville, in December of 1964, was sentenced Tuesday to a term of from 2½ to 5 years at hard labor in Clinton State Prison. He was sentenced as a second offender, having been convicted of a felony in the state of Vermont.

The sentence was pronounced by County Judge Raymond J. Mino at the opening of the September trial term of County court.

Former Employe

Casterlin had previously been employed in Ellenville and returned to that village, went to a hotel where he had formerly worked and entered the premises. He slept in one of the rooms of the hotel and then allegedly set fire to the room. Casterlin had previously entered a plea of guilty to the malicious injury to property and Judge Mino adjourned imposition of sentence to permit an inspection of the Vermont records to ascertain whether the conviction in 1963 in Vermont was a felony conviction. It was disclosed the breaking and entering conviction in Vermont was a felony. At that time in Bennington, Vt., Casterlin was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation.

Casterlin was represented by Charles Kaiser, assigned counsel, with James Murray of Ellenville of counsel at the time of sentencing.

79 Criminal Cases

A calendar of 79 cases was presented at the call of the criminal calendar Tuesday afternoon by District Attorney Joseph Torraca.

Several of these cases were announced ready for trial and at the conclusion of the call, Judge Mino made up a day calendar of criminal cases. Placed at the head of the calendar for selection of a jury today was a second degree robbery, second degree assault and petit larceny charge against Clarence Cook, also known as Guernsey Wynkoop.

C-H Will Spend $2,350,000 for Pollution Curb

A multimillion-dollar program to control air polution from its major electric generating station a few miles north of Newburgh has been announced by Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation.

In making the announcement, Central Hudson President Lelan F. Sillin Jr. said the first step in the $2,350,000 program will be the installation of an electrostatic precipitator as part of a new generating unit now under construction at Danskammer Point Steam Station.

Due by 1967

"We are undertaking this program and incurring significant costs in order to demonstrate our concern for air pollution control and for the aesthetic values identified with the Hudson River," he said.

The utility executive emphasized that when the new generating unit goes into service in 1967, it will operate with the most modern type of gas emission controls. The electrostatic precipitator will remove 98 per cent of all solid matter that ordinarily would pass into the air.

Equipment was installed initially on each of the three existing Danksammer generating units for the purpose of controlling the emission of particulate matter into the air. With the passing of time, this equipment has become inadequate. As a result, Central Hudson undertook a study in November of last year to determine the feasibility of replacing the existing mechanical dust collectors with electrostatic precipitators. As in the case of the fourth unit, 98 per cent of all solid matter in the gas streams of the three existing units would be removed.

Sillin explained, "The studies indicated that the cost of modernizing the air pollution control facilities in the existing three units will amount to about $2,000,000. And the cost of install-

Expect Two Names Soon For Flight

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The first civilian astronauts to fly a Gemini space mission are expected to be named this week.

Top sources say Neil A. Armstrong and Elliot M. See Jr. will pilot Gemini 8, a two-day rendezvous and docking mission expected early next year.

Armstrong, 35, a Korean war veteran from Wapakoneta, Ohio, and See, 38, of Dallas, Tex., were backup crewmen for Gemini 5 astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr., who last week completed a record flight of 190 hours and 55 minutes.

Tough Tests Ahead

Sources say the Gemini 8 crew must be named soon so they can start the tough, grinding training schedule. A Manned Spacecraft Center spokesman said today the selection probably would be made this week from the astronaut pool — which totals 33.

Armstrong, who was shot down over Korea but parachuted safely behind United Nations lines, is a former X15 test pilot. He had charge of astronaut training before being picked to the Gemini 5 crew last February. He is expected to be named command pilot.

Was G E Test Pilot

See was a test pilot for General Electric Co. before being named an astronaut in 1962. His shy manner and soft voice seem more applicable to a grade school teacher than a daring astronaut.

Cooper and Conrad still are briefing doctors, scientists and engineers on details of their 120

Pope Plans U. N. Visit October 4

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican press office announced today Pope Paul VI would go to New York to visit the United Nations on Oct. 4.

One-Day Visit

The announcement did not say how long the Pope would spend in New York on the first papal trip to the United States. But the director of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said he would be there only one day.

The 8,500-mile round trip will be Pope Paul's third major voyage since he opened a new era of papal travel by flying to the Holy Land and then to India last year.

He is expected to go again by air, leaving Rome on Sunday Oct. 3, and spending the next day in New York. Presumably he will fly back overnight to be in Rome Tuesday morning. In this way he will be gone a minimum amount of time while the Vatican Ecumenical Council is holding its final session.

Betsy Hurls Mightiest Gusts at Florida Keys

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Betsy pushed a six-foot wall of water across Florida's lower east coast today — the highest since the disastrous flood of 1926 — and battered the Florida Keys with savage, 140-mile-an-hour winds.

The mighty tide, pushed by a raging east wind that followed the passage of the storm center, sent the Miami River surging out of its banks for blocks on both sides and into numerous industrial plants.

Big Cities Flooded

Elsewhere, the waves swamped residential islands and sent salty floods pounding down the streets of Miami, Fort Lauderdale and other cities. Water surged three feet deep in Miami's palm-lined Biscayne Boulevard.

Not since the infamous storm of 1926, which sent Miami settlers streaming back northward, had a hurricane driven so much seawater ashore.

The metropolitan areas of the Florida Gold Coast apparently escaped major damage from winds which peaked at 105 miles an hour at Miami, considerably lower than expected.

But word still was to come from the smaller communities along the Florida Keys over which the eye of the mighty storm passed, lashing out with 140-mile-an-hour blows.

Despite the hours-long battering of wind and waves, only one death was reported. Helen Cooper, 40, was electrocuted at Miami by a falling power line.

Fear rose, however, for nine persons believed stranded aboard three houseboats in a

Over $22 Million Additional Going To Aid Education

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — More than $22 million in additional state aid for education will be spent this school year as an additional 120,000 pupils crowd classrooms.

The State Education Department reported Tuesday a record 4.7 million school enrollments from kindergarten through college for the 1965-66 school year.

The extra $22 million in expenditures will be allocated under state laws that link the amount of aid directly to enrollment figures.

Public schools, excluding colleges, have enrolled 3,190,000 pupils, an increase of 68,000 over last year. The college and university enrollment, 605,000, is up 45,890 over 1964-65.

Saugerties Fills Trustee Vacancy; Judge Resigns

A new trustee was named, the resignation of the police justice was accepted, a contract was let for painting the library and a Conservation Department spokesman advised about navigation laws on Esopus Creek at Tuesday night's Saugerties Village Board session.

Richard J. Underhill Jr., 116 Elm Street, was appointed to fill the vacancy on the board created by the resignation of Charles Rice, who was transferred by International Business Machines Corp., to Boulder, Colo. Underhill was a member of the Zoning Board of Appeals and an appointment to fill the vacancy will be announced.

The resignation of Attorney G. Thomas Rea Jr., as village police justice effective Sept. 30, was accepted with regret. Rea said the extent of his private practice no longer permitted him the time necessary to devote to the village position. He had served as police justice since April 1, 1958 and was last re-elected in March 1962.

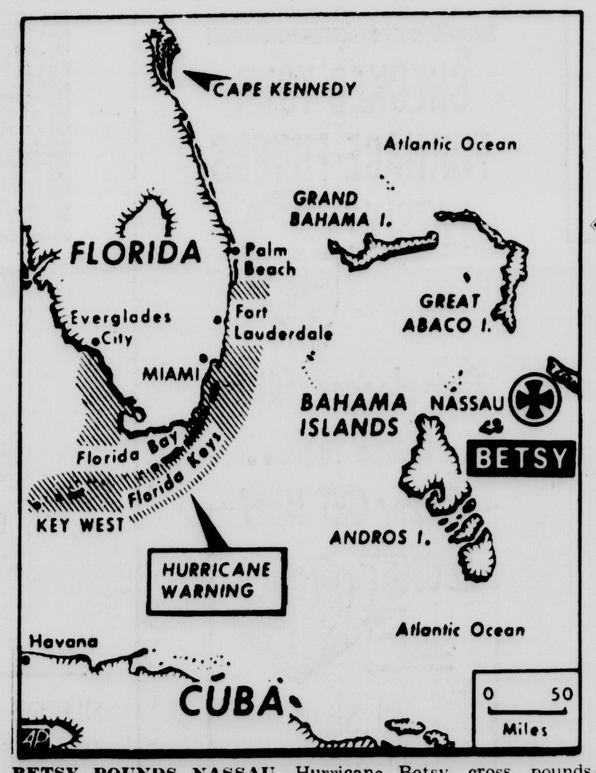

Three bids were opened by Village Clerk James V. Gage for painting the exterior of the Saugerties Public Library. The contract was awarded to the low bidder, Henry P. Reynolds of Saugerties.

Reynolds submitted a low bid of $352 for one coat and $575 for two coats. Other bids were E&D Contractors, Saugerties, one coat $360 and two, $603, and Jim and Marshall Saugerties, one coat $540 and two, $865.

Due to the large attendance—more than 50—the meeting was held in Donlon Auditorium in the municipal building.

Attorney Michael Catalinotto, representing a group of Robinson Street residents, said he wished to advise the board that Saugerties Ambulance Service was op-

Beatle Hair Fad Is Blamed for Aggravated Acne

By WILLIAM C. PATRICK
Medical Editor
Salt Lake Tribune

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — A form of teen-age skin trouble is not the only ailment that may be attributed to the Beatles.

The fad they started of wearing the hair over the forehead is resulting in many cases of what a barber has termed "Beatle forehead."

G. LeRoy Pulos, who trims customers' heads at the "Chop Shop," reports seeing many cases of aggravated acne under the bangs that hang down to the eyebrows.

The term could be called "Beatle skin." The condition is seen also among girls who wear their hair down the side of their faces.

A Salt Lake physician specializing in dermatology, Dr. Lewis Kitchens, said the observation was accurate, as doctors are seeing more cases of acne made worse by overhanging hair.

He pointed out that hair becomes dirty easily, collecting bacteria and warming the skin to promote development of acne.

Asked how he treats cases of acne, the physician replied: "First, I make them get the hair off their faces."

Then the acne patients are directed to wash their hair every day and to use a non-oily hair dressing. The doctor said the idea that frequent washing causes baldness is just so much bosh.

Other aspects of acne treatment are frequent washing (but not scrubbing) of the skin with special soaps, use of ultra-violet light and X rays, a balanced diet and generally good hygiene.

The doctor said young people with acne should drink plenty of water so the kidneys will excrete all solid waste products.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The Radio Emergency Association Citizen Team, formed last May to help police combat crime in the streets, is now on the lookout for illegal users of water.

The 48 members cruise the streets in private, radio-equipped cars and contact police if criminal activity is spotted. Now the group says it will radio police if they spot illegal water users. Lawn and shrub watering, car washing and some other uses of water have been banned in the city due to drought.

Detroit Trio Is Making Fortune, Glamour the Key

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie — Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD, (AP) — Take three Detroit girls, give them glamor trappings and a new rock 'n' roll sound, and what do you get? In the case of the Supremes, a million-dollar enterprise.

Within the brief space of a year, Diane Ross, Florence Ballard and Mary Wilson have been converted into world travelers earning fortunes with their songs. They were in Hollywood on one of their breakneck tours, picking up more loot with appearances on the Red Skelton and Dean Martin television shows.

I caught up with the girls at CBS' Television City, whence they had reported for the first Skelton show of the year.

Diane Ross appears to be the spokesman for the group. She is 21, as is Mary. Florence is the oldtimer; she's 22.

"We started singing together seven years ago, when we were 14 and 15," reported Diane. "We sang at dances and shows around Detroit.

"In those days we called ourselves the Primettes. But when we started recording last year we needed a better-sounding name, so we picked the Supremes from a list that the secretary at the record company had compiled. It sounded pretty good."

Their first record, "Where Did Our Love Go," sounded more than good to the teenagers who buy most of today's single records. A million and a half copies went over the counters in this country, another half-million in England. The Supremes seem unable to produce anything but hits, having followed with such solid sellers as "Baby Love," "Come See About Me," "Stop in the Name of Love," "Back in My Arms Again," "Nothing but Heartaches" and "Mother Dear."

These instant classics are whipped up for them by three Detroit boys who write for Motown Records. The Supremes' style is now termed "The Motown sound," which has to be heard to be understood.

The lives of the three girls have changed immensely in the past year, mostly for the better. On the good side is the money, which they are husbanding with care.

"We all bought houses for our parents, but otherwise the money goes right into the bank," Diane said. "You never know when the whole thing will blow over."

Company Making Saddle Frames Is Flourishing

By BEN CHESTER

DEMOREST, Ga. (AP) — Henry Ford put America on wheels with the automobile, but in this small north Georgia town, the word is still "get a horse."

It is here that the production of saddletrees, or frames, continues as an art handed down for generations.

The Edward Flor Co., which says it is the largest firm of its type in the world, has been operating 82 years. It reports that business is better than ever.

From rough pine and poplar lumber, 53 skilled craftsmen in a tin-roofed building turn out 1,200 to 1,400 ready-for-leather saddle frames every week, in any style, shape or size a horseman wants.

The operation is mostly wood, glue and nails, and with bandsaws and rough files.

Foreman Lester Palmer, who has been with the company 26 years, says the business has changed little since it began in 1883.

"I went to work there in 1939," Palmer said. "I started in the same job my father had, and he worked with the company about 50 years."

"We used an old undershot water wheel to pull two lines of machinery. When the old place burned down, there was just one electric motor used, and it ran a drill press."

"We tried to modernize once or twice, but it didn't seem to work out," Palmer said. "We just left things the way they are."

In the present plant, there is only the hum of bandsaws and an electric drill or two to indicate any modernization.

There are stacks of boards, piles of blocks and sawdust and shavings on the floor. There are wooden kegs with odd-shaped horns which go on the saddletrees: oval horns for cattle roping, big, round, shiny ones for expensive Mexican-style saddles, high horns for trick riders.

The rough saddletrees are shipped to saddlemakers across the country. Many wind up in custom saddle shops and in the mail-order trade.

Saddlemakers pay about $3 to $4 for the company's model for children and about $8 for a standard man-size roping model hull, which is much larger and stronger.

STERN MEASURES NEEDED

In a recent issue of The Freeman, David Lawrence led off his column with these striking words: "Everybody naturally laments the loss of 503 Americans in Viet Nam during the last four years, but it may come as a surprise to learn that in a single year in the United States itself nearly 16 times as many persons — approximately 8,000 — were murdered."

Tragically, there is every evidence that our Viet Nam casualties will materially increase. But it would take a staggering increase indeed to bring their numbers up to the dreadful murder toll. And all other crimes, as the FBI and other authoritative sources tell us, have been skyrocketing.

This is a cause of deep concern at the highest governmental levels — as President Johnson's appointment of a 19-member commission to study crime and recommend means for arresting it demonstrates. In his words, "The time has long since arrived for the nation to discard obsolete and unworkable methods of detecting and apprehending criminals." A great many experts are convinced that, as of now, there is excessive coddling of criminals at the expense of the law-abiding public.

Violence abounds not only in the streets of the great cities but in the countryside as well. Stern measures will be needed to control it.

Financial experts say the world faces a crisis of liquidity—and they're not talking about the polar ice caps melting, either.

THE SILVERLESS COINS

There's not much of a thrill in the new silverless "sandwich" quarters pouring out of the Philadelphia mint. They don't have the lustrous shine of the old silver quarter. Nor do they make that satisfying jingle in the pocket; when dropped, their sound is more of a klunk than a ring.

There are a couple of pleasant things about the silverless two-bit pieces, however. These pretty much compensate for the coin's lack of glamor. The first is that, though they do not jingle and shine as of yore, these coins will buy just as much as their silver predecessors. The other compensating factor is that, by using cupronickel coins, we will divert silver to more important uses. In a number of industries, silver is indispensable. Production does not keep up with demand. The adoption of silverless coinage will be a big help.

"Silverless" it not quite accurate. Newly minted quarters and dimes will be made entirely of copper and nickel under the new legislation, but half dollars are still to have 40 per cent silver. There seems to be no valid reason for this; the half dollars also could just as well be minted of copper and nickel.

There is still some opposition to this idea, opposition which is in part based on sentiment rather than common sense. The fact is that the buying power of our coinage depends not on its intrinsic value but on the vigor of our economy and the stability of our government. Silverless coins will buy as much as the coins with 90 per cent silver content. That is the real test of their worth.

Troops guard against demonstrations at a state fair. It was different in the old days. All you had to guard against when you went to the fair was pickpockets.

COMPUTERIZED 'ROADBLOCK'

A new weapon in the war against the scofflaw—the guy who breaks traffic regulations then ignores the ticket he gets—is undergoing a test in New York.

A system combining the watchful eyes of police and the infallible memory of a computer is snagging motorists right and left. This is how it works:

A policeman at one end of a bridge radios random samples of license plate nunbers of passing cars to a central computer, which has been programmed with the continually updated numbers of thousands of scofflaws, also the numbers of stolen cars.

Long before a car can cross the bridge—in a few thousandths of a second—the computer has scanned its memory banks and radioed back any wanted numbers to other officers waiting at the other end.

Since May, when the experiment began, 2,000 scofflaws have been located by this method.

So successful has it been that one police captain is convinced that general use of the system would pay for itself even before anyone was apprehended because it would encourage many motorists to pay their fines promptly.

Which is the way it should be.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

WILL THEY DROP THE PILOT?

Bad Durkheim, West Germany—The Reich Chancellor Professor Doctor Ludwig Erhard (the academic title looms large in his literature) is coming to Bad Durkheim to campaign. This is a small town in the Rhineland wine country, placid under a pale early autumn sun. Its people turn out in the kurpark—the "cure place" whose waters are supposed to be effective against rheumatism—to hail the chief architect of the German economic miracle as he comes from the train. It is rather like old-fashioned political campaigning in America before the jet age destroyed the intimacy of the whistle stop appearances.

Erhard enters the kurpark, a jolly white-haired fat man with a thick neck and pink skin. He looks a bit like Father Christmas in the Babar books for children. He waves the long cigar that is his distinctive trademark. Unlike his Social Democratic opponent, Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin, who boasts that he has taken off weight, he wants it to be known that he is the symbol of good living.

The Chancellor's speech, as it is translated for me by my companion, is run-of-the-mill stuff about prosperity and safety. Erhard is not a spellbinder. He pays no attention to the microphone, and it is not until he is halfway through that someone thinks to move it up to his mouth. The crowd is respectful, but not particularly animated. Only a few join in singing the national anthem. My companion explains to me that this has little significance; the Germans have had their surfeit of emotionalism under Hitler.

After it is over I talk to a young German medical interne. He complains that Erhard lacks force. When I ask him about Willy Brandt, he says he lacks force, too. The interne hopes the election will keep the parties more or less balanced, on the general principle that each needs the restraining influence of the other. When I suggest that this attitude might lose the election for Erhard's Christian Democrats, I am answered with a shrug of the shoulders.

To a visitor who is amazed at the continuing physical transformation of West Germany, this seems like ingratitude for everything that Erhard's party has done to let a modern economic system create its own affluence.

Germany has over-employment and has been forced to import workers; the porter who carried our luggage at the Frankfort airport the other day happened to be an American from the hard-coal country of Scranton, Pa., who left home because the living is better—and more certain—in Europe for a man with only a sixth-grade education. (Whatever became of America as the land of opportunity?) The big industries in Germany—Siemens (electricity), AEG Telefunken (telephone), Krupp (steel), and Daimler-Benz and Volkswagenwerk (automobiles) are right up with General Electric, IBM and Chrysler in their employment statistics. General Motors remains, of course, in a class by itself.) If, in the fact of all this, Erhard's party is to be turned out to pasture, it will be similar to the British dismissal of Churchill during the Potsdam Conference, or to the Kaiser's dropping of the "pilot," the Iron Chancellor Bismarck, at the end of the Nineteenth Century.

It has happened many times before in history, this ingratitude of peoples. In ancient Greece they drove out Aristides because they were tired of hearing him called "the just." There is a sociological law that speaks of the "Aristidization of heroes." Erhard could become its latest victime on September.

If he loses, Socialists the world over will welcome the verdict with a satisfied smirk. Our "planning" economists could put up with Erhard's predecessor, Konrad Adenauer, because he was first and last a politician. But they have never forgiven Ludwig Erhard, who was Adenauer's economic minister for so many years, for his clear demonstration that the way to revive a modern economy is to let the forces of the free market go to work. Erhard killed all the old certainty of the socialists that capitalism was washed up, and even if the Social Democrats win on September 19 it will be because Erhard forced them to campaign on slogans that are bourgeois in every way.

The jolly fat man with the cigar may not speak with force. But, in his own way, he has already moved mountains.

The Doctor's Mailbag

Both Heat and Cold Used In Treating Bursitis

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—In a recent column you advised heat for bursitis of the shoulder. My doctor says cold is better because it reduces the inflammation while heat would only increase it.

A—This is an age-old controversy. Heat increases the circulation wherever it as applied and in that sense it temporarily increases inflammation. The increased circulation also promotes healing.

Many doctors advise their patients to try both heat and cold, then use whichever gives the most relief. Others straddle the fence and advise alternating heat and cold. This often achieves remarkable improvement.

In the treatment of bursitis, ultrasound, short wave diathermy and infrared lamp tratments have all been used. They all depend on heat for their effect. As a matter of fact, for most cases of bursitis neither heat nor cold is as important as rest, sometimes accomplishes with a sling or splints and a short course of cortisone.

Q—What is the best treatment for miner's elbow and housemaid's knee?

A—I hope you don't have both at once. Miner's elbow, tennis elbow and housemaid's knee are forms of bursitis. For treatment see preivous question.

Q—I am a man, 66. For about a year I have had numbness in my right hand. My doctor says I have vascular insufficiency. What does he mean? Will any kind of medication help me?

A—Numbness may be caused by arthritis if the joint lesions press on nerves in the affected area. Other causes include nerve lesions due to anemia and other diseases. Vascular insufficiency could mean poor circulation due to varicose veins, hardening of the arteries, Buerger's disease or Raynaud's disease. When your doctor determines what type of vascular insufficiency is causing your numbness he will be in a better position to apply appropriate treatment.

Q—Where can I find out about clubs for parents of twins?

A—In 1960 the National Organization of Mothers of Twins Clubs was started. It now has close to 5,000 members and there are 130 local chapters. Its purpose is to disseminate knowledge of special problems in the raising of twins, triplets, etc. and to increase awareness of the individuality of each twin. For further information you may write to NOMOTC, Box 109, Main Post Office, Toledo 1, Ohio.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

"The Meeting Will Come to Order, I Hope!"

Washington News

BY BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

President Johnson is at last well on his way to mastery of the one kind of politics he really did not know in mid-1964—the politics of the state, the county and the northern big cities.

While meaning no disrespect, some of his own advisers felt last year that he probably never would accomplish this. They believed the demands of the presidency would never allow him the time to memorize the political map the way the late John F. Kennedy grasped it through endless journeys to the local battlefields.

One of the President's best friends told him after the 1964 campaign that very little warm personal allegiance was then being given him by state and local party leaders in the critical northern and western states.

But at least one of the skeptical advisers is now saying, with some vehemence, that Johnson has in fact scored a breakthrough by dint of the same sort of dogged persistence he exhibits in every aspect of his official life.

Johnson is said to be acquiring a detailed knowledge of the country's Democratic political machinery and to be developing far more solid relationships with mayors, city and country chairmen, state leaders.

In the vote-rich urban Northeast, Midwest and Pacific slope, these links are being made stronger by the fact that the President is delivering the goods — walloping through Congress the most sweeping legislative programs in recent decades.

THERE ARE THOSE in Washington, however, who quietly insist that some credit for Johnson's increasing grasp of national party mechanics must go to his new postmaster general, Lawrence F. O'Brien, veteran organizer and congressional liaison chief in the White House.

From time to time since his tenure began, the President has been reported as relying politically on one or another of his personal associates of longer standing. This may or may not ever have been his intention. In any event, for reasons better left unsaid, these others did not pan out.

By campaign time last year, O'Brien was Johnson's political mainstay. The tie was close and constant, enriched by mutual respect, growing understanding, and a common love of the colorful materials of politics.

Out of those materials, transmitted through amusing anecdotes, sharp insights into men and situations, and painstaking elaboration, the President began to fashion his real hold on the politics of the country.

FROM JOHNSON'S STANDPOINT, it would have been absolutely foolhardy to have allowed one of the country's very best political minds to escape Washington, perhaps to undertake the vagaries of campaigning on his own in the rough-and-tumble of Massachusetts politics.

It must now be accepted beyond question that O'Brien, from his prestigious new post a few blocks from the White House, will be the principal architect of Democratic party effort for the next several years.

Naturally his biggest enterprise will be the attempt in 1968 to give the President another full term. But the work actually begins this fall, with hard preparations for the 1966 elections wherein Democrats hope to block Republican hopes for a major comeback in Congress and various state-houses.

THE CORNERSTONE of O'Brien's political tactics is that, once properly begun on the widest conceivable registration footing, political endeavors should continue around the calendar without important letup.

Many Republicans, including Barry Goldwater, are grudging or open admirers of O'Brien's skills. They could not help but be pleased, for the man, that he has attained the pinnacle of recognition in his very special profession.

But the day Lyndon Johnson dispatched him to the postmaster general's office may be, in the long run, an uneasy memory for the Republicans.

Henceforth, as a consequence of that day, Johnson as a national politician is more to be feared than ever. And so, clearly, is the Democratic party.

Hoover's Riot Message Is Particularly Significant

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, probably knows more than anybody else what's causing crime to increase throughout the nation. He keeps in close touch with local officials and police in all areas, and certainly is able to form a judgment as to whether recent disturbances have been due primarily to "sociological" factors. Hence, his latest message — published in the September issue of the "FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin" — about hoodlums and riots is particularly significant.

Mr. Hoover does not accept the explanation — frequently offered even in the Administration — that the disorders can be blamed on the failures of society. He says:

"It appears that the public is beginning to gag on the steady sociological diet of excusing the conduct of teenage hoodlums because 'society has failed them.' Resort communities racked by senseless riots and citizens who cannot venture from their homes without being assaulted and beaten are getting fed up with pampered and insolent youth gangs

"Meanwhile, the question puzzling most people is what caused the principles and morals of some of our youth to degenerate to near animal level. Recognizing the problem comes much easier than its solution. However, of all the factors involved, I am convinced one of the most damaging is the false teaching which tends to blame society for all the frustrations, woes, and inconveniences, real or imaginary, visited upon our young people.

"Teen-agers and their parents have been subjected to a foolhardy theory which condones rebellious conduct against authority, law and order, or any regulatory measures which restrict their whims, wishes, desires, and activities. This astonishing belief has spread into the schoolroom, the living room, the courtroom and now into the streets of our nation in the form of wild, drunken brawls.

"No doubt society has failed our youth, but not in the way many seem to think. Rather, the dereliction has been in the failure to teach them the meaning of discipline, restraint, self-respect, and respect for law and order and the rights of others. Consequently, the lesson now is both painful and costly."

Mr. Hoover did not discuss specifically the riots which have developed out of racial friction but confined himself to the misbehavior of teenagers generally. There are, however, many people, inside and outside the government, who feel that to blame society for the recent disturbances is a convenient excuse and overlooks the fact that criminal elements have taken advantage of the racial controversy.

Just a few days ago, William H. Parker, chief of the Los Angeles police department, revealed that many persons who participated in the recent riots in California were veteran criminals. He said:

"We processed 2,500 of those arrested and found that 76 per cent of them had criminal records prior to the riot. . . . There were 26 of these people on parole at the time they were arrested."

Most police officers are unhappy about the attitude of the courts in letting criminals go free. Indeed, FBI director Hoover, in his message in the "Law Enforcement Bulletin," makes a comment on this point, too. He says:

"Some courts in the troubled areas are taking a more realistic approach in handling those involved in these outbreaks. New laws providing stiffer penalties are being enacted in a few places. We can only hope that authorities everywhere will follow this trend."

There is no doubt that the emphasis on "police brutality" has been stirring up hostility toward law enforcement and at the same time provoking considerable criticism from those responsible for the arrest and punishment of criminals.

Judge Norman Elkington of the California Superior Court, in sentencing an ex-convict to life imprisonment a few days ago, lashed out at the attention given to allegations of "police brutality." The prisoner — described by the judge as "the most vicious criminal" he had ever seen —had claimed that his civil rights were violated by "brutality" on the part of the two arresting officers, and the charges had been investigated by the Department of Justice. The judge asked:

"How should a policeman disarm a desperate criminal coming at him with a knife? Are there some sporting rules he must follow, such as allowing the assailant to draw first blood?"

One college professor, in a paper presented to the American Sociological Association convention in Chicago last week, even advocated that policemen should carry no weapons. The theory is that disarming them would improve their public image and reduce antagonisms.

Law enforcement is being made more and more difficult despite the fact that the crime wave now is disturbing American life more than at any other time in history.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Stupidity isn't quite enough. A man has to be stupid and stubborn to play golf. I qualify. I have been an addict for 26 years. The kids call me the bogey man. I'm not, really. When I bogey a hole, I'm cheating.

In the first place, I'm left handed. Also, I think left-handed. Further, I have read scores of books by golf experts and I now know so much about the game that, when I get to a tee, I can't stand up properly. Once, at Bamm Hollow, I was behind Dr. Charles Kelly on the uphill 18th, and I clobbered a two wood. To the doctor's amazement, he heard the ball whistle around both of his ears.

It passed the left ear on the way up, made its natural turn to the right, made another right at the apogee, passed his other ear, returned to me, and I lost 15 yards. He picked up a few points systolic.

Today I played another doctor — Louis Bennett — and if he is not the world's worst golfer, effort counts for nothing. I have seen him blast shots which died on the ladies' tee. So he won the match today by carding an eight on the last hole against my 11. His arithmetic may be limping a little.

Golf spelled backwards is flog. This is what the golfer does to himself. A week or so ago Jack Nicklaus got an 80. In the newspapers, he was smiling about it. Back in the clubhouse he was still smiling. In the shower he was smiling. Sheer terror.

Ask me why I play the game and I cannot tell you. There is a fascination about tomorrow. Not today. Today died shortly after noon. But tomorrow is when everything is going to be all right. Tomorrow is when the golfer admits to himself that he has been twisting that hand under the club shaft, that he has been dropping his shoulder, looking up at impact, etc. ad nauseam.

When he hits the first ball and it arcs over onto the fourth fairway and dies under two inches of lake, he will know that it is none of those things, it's something else. Like voodoo. Or else the ailment is so subtle and mysterious that no one can cure it.

Nick Bersan, the professional, gives me a cool nod and a lot of room when he sees me on the course. Bob Hope, the showoff, sat in a cart behind me one day and said: "Why don't you give up this ----- game?" Bob Consodine, who is my friend in all other things, will not play golf with me because he's afraid that what I do is contagious.

I beat Jack Kofoed, the Miami columnist and book belter, 100 to 99. He never mentions it, not even to me. He watched me go from bunker to bunker and said that if I ever get religious, I should join the Trappists. His column isn't funny, either.

Bob Brumby, who used to ghost Bobby Jones' books, invited me to play Lucaya. The fairways look like Irish bowling alleys. In one round, I lost 36 balls. That night, I became lucky and won $400 at roulette. "See?" Brumby said sympathetically, "you've been playing the wrong ball."

For Christmas last year, the children gave me a dozen golf balls. Tom Ferris, who is left-handed and requires radar to see the ball under his belly, said: "Want me to paint stripes on 'em so you'll feel more relaxed?"

Buddy Hackett hits a long ball. On a 310-yard hole, he reaches the green on his first whack. The trouble with his game is that the second shot is just as long as the first. Jackie Gleason plays a fair game, but if he blows up on the 11th, he goes back to the first and starts over.

Don Cuddy, the press agent, is everybody's pigeon. I have seen him use a nine iron and drop a clod of turf on the green from 70 yards out. The best place to be, when he's swinging, is on the ball. Someone said that Cuddy couldn't hit the grass if he fell down, but I don't believe it.

For laughs, I like to play Mike Morgan and Jim Mackey. Morgan is a writer who plays the game with 13 woods and a putter. He and Mackey are good, but if they miss one, Morgan murmurs: "Dear Lord, I don't know why you're doing this to me, but Thy will be done—and remember, it's 10 cents a hole." Mackey is the only man I know who can swear at the top of his lungs while the ball is still in flight. He is completely relaxed, just a shade this side of apoplexy. Playing these two will not improve your game, but it will make you feel better.

Sometimes, after I come in with a scintillating 105, I feel like the golfer who decided to end it all. He went into the locker room, turned on the warm water, and slashed both wrists. He was bleeding to death quietly, with an interlocking grip, when a pal stuck his head inside the door and said: "Wanna play tomorrow?"

"What time?" the bleeder said. . .

West Point Coach Is Guest Speaker At Lions Meeting

At the Tuesday noon meeting of Kingston Lions Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel, Eric Tipton, coach at West Point presented the sports program at the Academy with particular emphasis on the forthcoming football season. He pointed out that every cadet must participate in some form of athletics. There are four sports in the fall, nine in the winter and five in the spring. The 2600 cadets participate in over 18 sport activities throughout the year with greater than 40 per cent in intercollegiate contests and the remainder in intramural sport activities. Last year the academy won 175 of the 231 intercollegiate contests.

The sport program at West Point costs up to one million dollars which is supported entirely from receipts from activities, primarily the football program. The academy does not get top-notch athletes since they are discouraged by the five-year military obligation following graduation. Most of the graduates with athletic ability go to named colleges and look forward to being signed as bonus players or at least getting a chance to try out their skill following graduation, he said.

West Point's fine type of young men compete with the top teams of the country. This year's team has 90 young candidates. Coach Paul Dietzel is trying a new spreading offense combining the T with I formation. He will use the two platoon system. He lost last year's backfield but has nine lettermen returning and expects to have a fine defensive team—one hard to score on, Tipton said.

Of the five games at Michie Stadium this year with VMI, Rutgers, Colgate, Wyoming and Boston as opponents, he cites the one with Boston on Oct. 2 as especially tough for the cadets.

Coach Tipton pointed out that season tickets are available for local residents which will enable them to buy tickets to the popular Army-Navy game.

Herb Lown, co-chairman of the program committee, introduced Coach Tipton as a native of Petersburg, Va., graduate of Duke University Class of 1938, All-American Football team that year and recently elected to Football Hall of Fame. He played pro-baseball for 14 years, coached at William and Mary College for 18 seasons and has been on athletic staff of USMA for nine years. Currently he is varsity baseball coach and coach of 150 pound football team.

Women Injured In Area Crash

Four elderly Long Island women were injured and hospitalized Tuesday afternoon, after the car in which they were riding went out of control on the State Thruway near mile post 93 about two miles north of Kingston.

The injured were taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance. The were listed as Mrs. Esther Dikeman, 71, of Seaford, who sustained head, chest and leg injuries; Mrs. Jane Watts, 73, of Valley Street; Mrs. Prudence Richie, 75, Freeport, and Mrs. Grace Wiegert, 73, of Lynbrook, who received lacerations and abrasions.

It was reported the car was northbound shortly after 12:10 p. m. when the vehicle careened off the right shoulder and into a field. Mrs. Dikeman was ejected.

Further details were not available and the operator of the vehicle was not identified.

Dear Abby . . .

Party Manners!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last week my husband and I gave a housewarming party in our first new home. We sent out invitations to 16 couples saying it was a housewarming. Everyone came, but only one couple brought a gift. I was so hurt and embarrassed I didn't know what to think. Yesterday one of my friends told me she would have brought a gift, but one of the other invited guests took it upon herself to call up everybody and spread the word that it's not etiquette for people to give a housewarming party for themselves, and therefore it wasn't proper to bring a gift. She said a "real housewarming party, where a gift is in order, is one that is given by friends for the new home owners. Abby, if we had known this we never would have given that party. We went to a lot of expense entertaining those people with drinks and food. That girl sure had her nerve. But was she right?

NOT UP ON ETIQUETTE

DEAR NOT UP: "Etiquette" is a matter of common sense. When friends call on a couple in their new home for the first time, it's customary to bring a gift. Your friend, the self-appointed authority on etiquette, could use some pointers on what's proper. However, if you gave the party only to harvest the gifts, the crop failure was just.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: I'm just curious. I have an aunt and uncle who were married for 62 years and they are now getting a divorce. Is this a record?

AMAZED AND ASHAMED

DEAR A AND A: I hope so.

DEAR ABBY: Rose (fictitious name) and I were girlhood friends. Today she is very, very wealthy and I am a working widow. We're both in our late 50's. When Rose's husband died, four years ago, I went to her apartment every day after work to help her bear her sorrow. With me she could be herself, and not "Mrs. Park Avenue," as she had to be with her ritzy friends. With all her money and leisure, Rose has never spent five cents for a birthday card for me. When I was sick and out of work for seven months, not once did she come to my humble apartment to see me. She didn't even send me a can of soup. After my illness I went to see her and she acted like she had just seen me yesterday.

She is interested in only herself and was happy to have someone to listen to HER troubles. I can't understand how a person can be so selfish and spoiled. Should I completely drop her? I don't hate her—I am just hurt to think of how much of myself I gave to her when she needed me, and how little she gave me in return.

ROSE'S DOORMAT

DEAR DOORMAT: Yes, drop her. Otherwise admit that you enjoy being a doormat.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: Recently I gave a party at my home for a large group of women. Before going home, at least six women asked me for some cake and sandwiches (and even salad) to take home to their husbands and children.

Now, Abby, I am thrilled when my guests enjoy the refreshments I serve, and I want them to eat their fill. But it disgusts me when they expect me to send home enough food for them to feed their families. I have children who enjoy leftover cake and sandwiches, too. It seems that some people just want an extra meal for nothing. Please put this in your column for people who make a habit of doing this. And sign me—

Jennie Survives Infanticide, Is U. S. Visitor Now

SEATTLE (AP) — Fifteen months ago, Jennie Blinco was born—and almost died—in a Venezuelan jungle. Her mother, a member of an Indian tribe which practices infanticide, choked her with a vine after giving birth.

Today, Jennis is the healthy, bright-eyed adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Blinco, New Tribes missionaries who are visiting here with Mr. and Mrs. Ted J. Kuhn, Mrs. Blinco's parents.

"Jennie was found in the jungle just outside the only Christian village in the Guaica tribe," Mrs. Blinco said. "The Guaicas are one of the most primitive tribes on earth and they practice infanticide regularly.

"Jennie's mother was visiting a village near our base camp when Jennie came. She went off into the jungle in the middle of the night and bore her, then strangled her with a vine and left, thinking Jennie was dead. That afternoon, some of the village Indians heard a baby crying in the jungle."

Blinco, a native of Cumberland, England, said the child was "more dead than alive" when it was brought to them.

The Blincos plan to return to Venezuela early next year, taking Jennie along. New Tribes Missionaries, operating under an interdenominational Prestant missions board, work with primitive tribes.

New Storm May Be Brewing in Caribbean Area

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—As Hurricane Betsy raged across Florida, weathermen were presiding today over the possible birth of another tropical storm 1,200 miles to the southeast.

A tropical depression moving toward the northern Leeward Islands had developed a circulation and was sending squalls out over a 150-mile wide area.

Top winds so far were only 35 miles an hour as the depression moved toward St. Martin in the northern Leeward Islands at the eastern edge of the Caribbean Sea.

It was whirling on a northwesterly course, on a historic path of September storms.

Lawmakers Race Clock on Pa.'s Reapport Plan

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)— Members of a legislative conference committee, racing the clock, had a joint meeting on tap today on the lingering problem of Pennsylvania reapportionment.

A new deadline issued last week by the state Supreme Court runs out Thursday.

Republican and Democratic members of the six-man committee met in separate sessions Tuesday night to outline final strategy.

Neither side would comment on the prospects of a settlement.

The court ordered realignment of Pennsylvania's House and Senate districts on a population basis remained the top legislative topic as the General Assembly reconvened today after the long Labor Day weekend.

The state high court, which issued the original Sept. 1 deadline on reapportionment, told the conference committee Friday that it would give it until Thursday to report on its progress.

One member of the tribunal, who declined to be named, said the court would step in and realign the districts if there is no agreement by the new deadline.

The state Supreme Court ruled last year that the 1964 reapportionment acts failed to meet the "one man, one vote" dictum of the U.S. Supreme Court. So it told the legislature to try again.

The Republican - controlled Senate and the Democratic-controlled House failed to agree on a reapportionment bill. Consequently, the joint legislative conference committee was appointed last Thursday.

Heart of the issue was the population variance to be permitted in redistricting the House. Substantial agreement on the Senate plan had been reached previously.

His Share-the-Wealth Policies Carried Out

Career of Kingfish Huey Long Discussed by His Senator Son

EDITOR'S NOTE — Thirty years ago today, Kingfish Huey Long was shot down by an assassin in the Louisiana state Capitol. Russell B. Long, his son who was 16 at the time, is now assistant Democratic Senate leader. In this exclusive interview, Sen. Long gives his views on his father's political career and on circumstances surrounding the assassination.

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty years after an assassin's bullet struck down Kingfish Huey Long, "we've not only done most of what he advocated but we've even gone beyond it," says his son, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.

The flamboyant Kingfish, whose controversial "share the wealth" politics carried him from the backwoods of northern Louisiana to the U.S. Senate, was shot Sept. 8, 1935, in Louisiana's 32-story state Capitol building at Baton Rouge. He died two days later.

"No one should be too rich and no one too poor" was the way he felt, the senator said in an interview. Sixteen at the time his father was assassinated, he is now assistant Democratic leader of the Senate.

Some of Programs

Welfare programs, government construction of highways and hospitals, abolition of poll taxes, and free education are just some of Huey Long's programs that have long since become law, the senator said, adding that the Social Security and welfare benefits go beyond what he envisioned.

"President Johnson has said he used to come over to the Senate and listen to Huey Long speak," the senator added, noting that a large part of the President's education and anti-poverty programs bear marked similarity to the Kingfish's ideas.

There have been differences, too. "We've tried to help people own their own homes," he said. "He tried to give it to them debt free."

Extremely Controversial

Much of what Long did was extremely controversial. He was impeached by the state Assembly within a year of taking office as governor. But he lined up enough state senators behind him — the charges were due to be tried by the Senate — so the trial never took place.

When Huey Long refused to resign as governor upon election as senator, opponents accused him of being a dictator. He finally left the governorship a year later after his close friend, O. K. Allen, had been elected governor.

After Long's death, many of his associates, including Richard Leche who had been elected governor on the Long ticket in 1936, were sent to jail on various charges including fraud and income tax evasion in what became known as the "Louisiana scandals."

The Kingfish made no secret of his many relatives on the state pay roll, contending they deserved it because "they were among my political supporters of longest and most arduous service."

Popular Governor

"By any objective standards," the senator contends, "he was the best governor Louisiana ever had. He was a doer, and he was enormously popular with the people."

"Many people have told me," Long said, "that they consider Huey Long responsible for Social Security.

"They think (President Franklin D.) Roosevelt became interested in it because he needed something to build a backfire against some of the headway Huey Long was making.

"He never told me he was planning to run for president but as a politician I could see all the signs," Sen. Long said.

"I think he figured as a third party candidate he'd run well to the left of Roosevelt and pull enough votes away from Roosevelt that the Republicans would win. Then, in four years, he'd be the Democratic candidate and would be elected.

"A lot of wealthy Republicans would have helped him. They wanted to beat Roosevelt so badly they would have helped Huey Long even though they might have created a Frankenstein. They certainly didn't agree with anything Huey Long was for.

Just Don't Know

"I just don't know if he ever would have been elected," the senator said.

At the time of his assassination, Huey Long was only 42. Like his life, Long's death stirred controversy. The alleged assassin, Dr. Carl Weiss, was shot to death by Long's bodyguards within seconds of the Kingfish's assassination and some have accused them of shooting the senator.

"There's no doubt in the world" that Weiss did it, the senator said.

In the two days that he lay dying, Long said, his father asked his doctors: "I don't know why that boy did that. Who is he? Why did he do it?"

The senator says the main reason he knows is that the judicial district which Weiss' father-in-law represented on the State Supreme Court had been redistricted, forcing the judge to retire rather than face almost certain defeat. Of the idea that Weiss feared Long might accuse the family of having Negro blood, the senator said: "My father had no such idea and never cared about that."

Twenty years after Long died, his son said, a poll showed half the persons questioned regarded him as the greatest governor in the state's history. His political heirs, meanwhile, have continued to dominate the state's politics, which have generally matched the Longs against the anti-Longs.

Push Airport Probe

Investigation of vandalism at Linlithgo Airport in which damage of about $1,000 was reported, was continued today by Claverack state police. Two airplanes were damaged. Herbert Laurange, Valatie, owner of one of the planes reported the damage. He said a panel of linen material covering the plane had been smashed. The other plane, owned by John Slater Jr., had been sprayed with paint and two five-gallon cans of motor oil were dumped on the hangar floor.

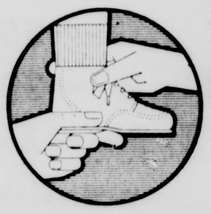

Shandaken GOP Club

The Town of Shandaken Republican Club will hold its next meeting September 15, at which time officers for the 1965-1966 term will be installed. Guest speaker will be Lloyd Newcomb. September 19 the club's annual picnic will take place at Simpson's Ski Slope, Phoenicia at 1 p. m. Members and their families are invited.

House Approves Watered-Down Bill on Closings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House approved 347 to 0 Tuesday a watered-down plan requiring the Pentagon to give Congress 30-day notice of any military base closings.

But a move to override President Johnson's veto of a stiffer check on the Pentagon-requiring a 120-day notice — was smothered, 320 to 19.

The compromise provision accepted is in a $1.78-billion military construction authorization bill which the House sent to the Senate where quick approval is expected. There were no changes in hundreds of authorizations for construction at U.S. bases around the world from the bill Johnson vetoed.

erating from 23 Robinson Street in violation of the zoning ordinance.

Clifford Jones, one of the owners of the service offered a petition signed by 19 residents of Robinson Street indicating the signers had no objections to operation of the ambulance service from his home.

Other Business There

Former Village Trustee Elton L. Johnson said he has conducted a businss at 14 Robinson Street for the past 20 years. Walter B. Pettinger, who also conducts his machine shop on the street said fourb uildings at the end of that block are new being used for commercial business.

Mayor Cornelius Cox said the board would secure legal advice on the matter and make a decision to be announced later in the week. The mayor told Jones he could continue operation of the service until advised by the zoning enforcement officer that he was in violation.

L. James Flowers, chief navigation law enforcement of the State Conservation Department and Neil F. Gilson, enforcement representative attended to explain navigation laws as they apply to the Upper Esopus Creek where there had been complaints of water skiing and alleged speeding of powerboats.

After Flowers outlined the law governing inland navigation, a spokesman for a newly formed boat sportsmans club said they intended to operate within the law and were setting up a list of rules to regulate navigation along the Upper Esopus.

To Submit Rules

He said a copy of the rules will be submitted to the Village Board, who will forward it to Flowers for approval.

Following the discussion, the board meeting was moved back to the village clerk's office. Flowers continued the discussion in the auditorium with members of the boat sportsmen's club.

Trustee Charles W. Steele, police commissioner reported he had received a letter from the State Traffic Safety Council advising that law requires all traffic control devices in the village must conform to state standards by Jan. 1, 1967. The letter stated that recent survey indicated that 60 per cent of the signs and signals in the state will have to be replaced to conform to standards.

Village Clerk Gage was authorized to write to the council to determine if traffic engineers are available for assistance and advice, and the cost for this assistance.

Steele did not report on the possible appointments of sergeants to the police force from the current civil service list.

Frank Beiter, who recently purchased the property adjacent to the Blue Mountain Reservoir said he was having difficulty in keeping a gate closed which permitted entry to the village's right-of-way to the reservoir property. He said he pastures cattle and horses in the enclosure and they are permitted to stray when the gate is left open.

Beiter asked the board to consider purchase of this portion of the property at the going rate per acre. In involved one-sixteenth of an acre. The other alternate would be for the village to build a fence to the right-of-way and fencing off both sides.

Mayor Cox advised he would present the problem to the Water Board for study.

Village Clerk Gage was given permission to attend a training school for fiscal officers and village clerks Sept. 28 to Oct. 1 at Saratoga Springs.

McCann Improves

Frank McCann, 21, of the Catholic Day Camp, Lake Katrine, who was injured last month when the car he drove struck a tree on East Chester Street, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Kingston Hospital. He is under treatment for head, face, chest and leg injuries and was reported in serious condition for some time.

Sentence Suspended

Louis Costello, 21, of East Kingston, charged recently with disorderly conduct, was given a suspended sentence in city court today. Police charged him with creating a disturbance and interfering with traffic on central Broadway.

Saugerties Boy Escapes Injury As Vehicle Rolls

The two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Parker of The Knolls, Saugerties, playing alone in his father's car parked in front of the house, escaped injury this morning when the vehicle rolled down hill over an embankment across Mynderse Street and halted at a tree stump, village police reported.

Chief Harold Mills said the incident was reported about 9:30 a. m. A check of the station wagon indicated that the vehicle was in park position. However the emergency brake was not set, he said.

The car halted when it hit a tree stump in the pasture of Samuel Fluckiger of Mynderse Street. The car sustained some damage the chief said.

Action on . . .

connection with the uptown renewal project in an amount not to exceed approimately the sum of $903,157."

On the other UR measure he wrote:

"Enclosed herewith is a Cooperation Agreement for local grants-in-aid between the City of Kingston and the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency concerning the Uptown Renewal Project, N. Y. 121.

"It is requested that a resolution of the Common Council be adopted approving the agreement and authorizing its execution.

"The agency will be pleased to cooperate in any way possible to facilitate execution of this agreement. Please advise if there are any questions, or if we can be of assistance in any way."

Several Plans Reviewed

Majority Leader Machione, who heads the laws and rules committee, in dealing with reapportionment said several plans have been reviewed. He noted that a basic census by wards is an essential, and that establishment of a permanent commission has been proposed. Also considered were costs before and after urban renewal.

A letter to Frank C. Moore, chairman of the Local Government Advisory Board in Albany, was read. It asked for suggestions dealing with organization of a reapportionment program for the city. It also asked for "your interim report on reapportionment of local government legislative bodies as submitted to the Local Government Advisory Board dated April, 1965, and for any information on bills pending, which would affect reapportionment."

City Treasurer M. G. Richardson, in submitting the request for the $280,000 tax anticipation note, listed a total of some $170,000 in unpaid 1965 taxes, with $78,000 still due in 1964, and $47,000 in 1963 taxes.

It is anticipated that $120,000 of the unpail taxes will be received. Also due to be received are $77,000 in state aid, $23,000 in state mortgage tax money, $15,000 from parking meters, $250,000 in laboratory money, $52,000 as the county share of laboratory money, $10,000 from various departments, and $26,000 in miscellaneous revenues.

Two claims totaling $125,000, one of them involving alleged false arrest, were referred to Corporation Counsel Harry Gold.

Claims Filed

Dominick Borelli, of 55 Newkirk Avenue, filed a claim for $100,00 against the city, its police department, and officer Curtis VanDermark, alleging that he had been "falsely arrested and imprisoned" last June 3.

The claim notes that Borelli had been cited for lacking registration, plus proof of a driver's license, and that he had parked less than 75 feet from a turn. It is alleged that mental anguish, nervousness and other conditions resulted from the experience. The claimant is represented by Attorney Michael Nardone.

Another claim for $25,000 was filed by Sarah and Merritt Kiff, of 263 Main Street for injuries suffered by the former in a mishap May 29 at Dietz Stadium in a fall in a passageway said then to have been uneven. Rib, ankle and other injuries are claimed. They are represented by Attorney Frederick H. Stang.

An amendment to the ordinance dealing with refuse disposal was amended on request of Mayor John J. Schwenk.

The mayor informed the aldermen that he had been informed that a provision dealing with the hours for disposal of refuse applied to the former disposal site off Ulster Street Extension. The amendment was required to make the provision applicable to the Kingston Point landfill site.

An application for a zoning change affecting a property on Washington Avenue near Taylor Street which is to be used for a car-wash business, was approved. The application by Anna G. and Margaret M. Martin, of 34 Taylor Street, met with no opposition at a recent hearing.

Alderman Donald P. Tucker (R) Fourth Ward, said he was "disappointed" because "we are not having a second-phase road program as we had last year. I voted for the last program in hope that we would have another. There are a few streets in particular that are in dire need of repair in the Fourth Ward, namely Rock Street, Hutton Street and First Avenue.

Those streets he said, had been listed for the past two years, "but nothing was done. I therefore ask the Board of Public Works to find a feasible means to try to repair these streets before winter sets in."

Tucker also asked City Clerk Walter S. Foster to send a letter of thanks to the New York Central Railroad "for the splendid job they did in repairing the railroad crossings in the Fourth Ward."

India Launches

miles northeast of Barmer, "continued to make progress" despite Pakistani counterattacks which were "being repulsed with heavy losses to the Pakistanis," the Indian announcement claimed.

Conflicting Reports

Again there was a conflicting report from the Lakistani side. A spokesman in Rawalpindi said the Indian offensive has been bogged down for the past 24 hours.

Air raid sirens sounded at 2:45 a.m. in New Delhi and wailed for 10 minutes, but officials said the Indian air force had repelled an air attack on the capital. A Defense Ministry spokesman said one Pakistani plane, an American-made C130 transport, went down in flames near New Delhi's Palam International Airport.

New Delhi had expected a raid in reprisal for an Indian air raid Tuesday against the airport at Rawalpindi, the Pakistani capital. The Defense Ministry spokesman said no damage was sustained in New Delhi and made no mention of Indian losses in the air clash.

Burglary Foiled In Port Ewen

A 17-year-old Sleightsburg youth and a 14-year-old boy from that community were apprehended today through teamwork of neighbors and the sheriff's office, as the youths attempted a burglary at a Port Ewen home.

County Investigator Thomas Mayone said Clarence Snow, 17, will be arraigned this afternoon on a third degree burglary charge. The juvenile will be petitioned into Family Court.

It was about 9 a. m. when Mrs. Edward Mains of Port Ewen spotted two boys enter the residence of Mrs. Isabel Maroney on Bayard Street, Port Ewen. Mrs. Mains called a neighbor, Ronald Latz Sr., and he went to investigate. He saw two persons in the Maroney house and he returned home and got a rifle, Mayone said.

Meanwhile, Special Deputy Sheriff Joseph Pecora of Port Ewen happened along and he was flagged down by Latz, who reported someone was in the Maroney home. Mayone was notified and he went to the scene.

The intruders apparently decided to make a getaway and they left the house through a cellar window through which authorities said they had entered.

Latz and Pecora nabbed the pair and detained them until they were turned over to the custody of the county investigator, who took statements and filed the charges. There was no one at home in the Maroney residence at the time of entry.

Pope Plans . . . of L'Osservatore Romano, told newsmen the Pope would attend a major religious service in New York City on the afternoon of Oct. 4.

To Make Peace Plea

Vatican sources said the service would probably be in St. Patrick's Cathedral, on Fifth Avenue. It presumably will be the Pope's main activity outside of his attendance at a session the U.N. General Assembly.

He is expected to make a major peace appeal before the assembly.

Vatican officials reportedly hope President Johnson will go to New York to see the Pope. Presumably the White House had been sounded out on the possibility of this. It was assumed that the pontiff would not go to Washington because his visit officially is to the United Nations, not to the United States.

More Details Later

Vatican officials said further information about the Pope's trip would be announced in the next few days.

It had been generally believed the Pope, 67, would go to the United Nations after the new year because of the Vatican council. His decision to go earlier may possibly reflect his concern about the world situation.

Mass of Knowledge Demands New Approach to Learning

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — This is what the knowledge explosion is, and what it means:

"If you started at the first of the year to read everything new in chemistry as it came out," says Dr. Laurence Strong, "by the end of the year you'd be 10 years behind."

It is because of this, and because as much has been learned about chemistry in the past 10 to 13 years as was ever learned before, that many of today's high school pupils are studying a "new chemistry" as part of a curricula revolution in U.S. education.

Began in '57

Strong, who has been head of the chemistry department at Earlham (Ind.) College here since 1952, said, it all started in 1957 at a meeting of high school and college chemistry teachers at Reed College in Portland, Ore.

"The high school teachers complained that what they were teaching didn't suit them, and was not really relative to modern - day chemistry. For instance, one single textbook dominated the high school chemistry field—it gave the teachers little choice," he said.

"I suggested a way out might be to organize a course around a key idea that chemists think significant. I further suggested that 'chemical bond' was such an idea.

"This is the idea that atoms are held together by forces to produce compounds. There are other concepts that could have been used.

Teachers Eager

"The high school teachers were interested, and asked us to do something about it. So we did."

The chemistry course which evolved from that Portland conference is known as Chemical Bond Approach, often referred to as "Chem-Bond" or simply "CBA."

It was the first of two "new" chemistry courses, but it is not the most popular.

That honor goes to the Chemical Education Materials Study, known as "Chem-Study," developed at Harvey Mudd College, Claremont, Calif., and the University of California at Berkeley.

According to U.S. Office of Education figures, more than a million high schol juniors study chemistry each year. Of these, about 50,000 are studying Chem-Bond, and about 250,000 are using Chem-Study materials.

Strong said the National Science Foundation wasn't particularly interested in the idea of a new chemistry course when it was first suggested to it in 1957. Two years later, however, the foundation sponsored a writing conference at which 19 high school and college chemistry teachers got together to write the first draft of the Chem-Bond materials.

Trial Period

Those materials were tried out in the schools and revised several times before commercial publication started in January this year.

"Unfortunately," Strong said, "some high schools are still using our earlier materials."

How is it working out?

"We've followed some of our pupils from the trial period into college chemistry," Strong replied. "They seemed to do a little better; there were fewer that failed, more who got high grades."

Strong voiced an opinion shared with many scientists in different disciplines:

"If the elementary school science programs make a real difference in what the pupils bring to the high schools, then the high school science programs must be re-thought and revised.

"It's the elementary science program that will make the next big difference."

Next: The new biology.

Road Toll Sets Holiday High

CHICAGO (AP)— Traffic accidents killed 563 persons on the nation's highways during the 78-hour Labor Day weekend, a record number for the holiday period.

The previous record of deaths in traffic accidents during the final summer holiday period was 557 set in 1963. Last year, there were 531 deaths.

Another 25 persons died in boating accidents during this year's holiday period and 45 persons drowned.

The National Safety Council had estimated that between 500 and 600 persons would die in traffic accidents between 6 p.m. (local time) and midnight of Labor Day.

Accord Youth Is Among Exhibitors At Exposition

Karel Coddington, member of the Rondout Valley Future Farmers of America, competed at the New York State Exposition on Friday, Sept. 3.

Karel is a member of the County FFA judging team which competed in the statewide field and forage crops contest. The contest consists of hay and grain judging, crop and seed identification, weed and insect identification, and disease and plant deficiency identification.

Teams from 35 county FFA groups competed. The crops contest offers a challenge to the teams because it requires a combination of practical experience and technical knowledge in field crops, seeds, weeds and insects.

Rondout Valley has offered instruction in vocational agriculture for only three years and Karel is the first member of this FFA chapter to compete at the New York State Exposition.

Karel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Val Coddington of Accord.

Judo Club Lists Five New Members

New members of the Kingston Judo Club include Paul Atkinson, James DiDonna, Robert Katcher, Ray Sperl and Lance Suslin, according to club secretary Al Girard.

Recently promoted to Sankyu status or third brown belt were DiDonna, Katcher, Jack Miggins, Dick Minero and Jack Waples. Promoted to fifth belt were Roger Aronis, Roger Greenwald, Michael Cahill, David Zimet and Leonard Zimet.

Swiss Guard Cut

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The full strength of the Vatican's Swiss Guard has been cut from 100 to 75, and the guard is down to 68 men because of recruiting difficulties.

Vatican sources said the reduced on-paper strength went into effect July 1. The guard's chief function is to protect the life of the Pope.

matter of fact

Although he never attended school, Davy Crockett, the legendary American frontiersman, served two terms in the Tennessee legislature and three in the United States Congress. Although he encouraged the "coonskin" legend to offset the rugged image of Andrew Jackson, whom he opposed, Crockett had been a successful businessman and delivered his speeches in fairly conventional English. He died fighting with the American forces at the Alamo in 1836.

Capitol News in Brief

Aid Vote Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House prepared to vote late today on a foreign aid money bill, while both diplomats and Congress members debated whether to continue aid to India and Pakistan if they keep on fighting.

Republican leaders proposed a sharp cutback in U.S. troop strength in Europe as one means of slowing the overseas drain of this country's dollars and gold reserves.

A presidential commission launched a systematic nationwide study of crime and law enforcement.

Halt Aid to Two

India-Pakistan: With both India and Pakistan escalating their undeclared war, this country halted military aid to both and State Department officials said the future scope of economic aid is still being considered. This implied that both might lose their chance at substantial U.S. assistance if they continue fighting over Kashmir.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the House Republican leader, urged President Johnson to demand that the fighting be stopped as a condition to continued U.S. economic aid which he said has amounted to almost $10 billion to the two countries since World War II.

"We have very large stakes in the peace of the subcontient," Secretary of State Dean Rusk said.

Eye Hanoi Traders

Foreign Aid: The possibility of cutting aid to nations trading with North Viet Nam, as well as to India and Pakistan, was raised as House opponents sought to whittle the foreign aid total.

The bill carries $3,285,000,000 for direct foreign assistance, only $75 million less than Congress authorized.

Republicans contend that 74 ships carrying flags of nations receiving U.S. aid have carried supplies to North Viet Nam. They want to cut aid to those countries which continue such shipments. The authorization bill expressed hope such aid would be cut off, but left the final decision to the President.

Favors Small Detachment

Republicans: The Republican Coordinating Committee says a small detachment of U.S. troops in Europe could give evidence of U.S. intentions to defend allies, and the rest of the armed forces now there could be brought home.

This and eight other recommendations were made by the party policy group as means of protecting the U.S. dollar and gold reserves. The 700,000 military and associated personnel now in Europe cause overseas spending of about $1.5 billion a year, about half the balance of payments deficit, the policy group said.

Summons Commission

Crime Commission: Atty Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach summoned a 19-member presidential commission to its first formal meeting today to begin a nationwide study of lawlessness, law enforcement and the administration of justice.

It has a $1.1-million congressional appropriation for the work, which actually was started shortly after Johnson named the members late in July. Seven panels will work in special fields to assemble data and recommendations which Johnson has asked by next summer.

Capital Quotes

"There is ample time for deliberation, but not for procrastination." — Former Undersecretary of the Treasury Robert V. Roosa in proposing a new medium for international exchange backed by a pool of national currencies.

"Their differences — which are important — are about how to get on with their world revolution." — Secretary of State Dean Rusk, concerning disagreements among the Communist powers, which he said have a common strategy of trying to win control of Asia, Africa and Latin America and thus strangle the Atlantic world.

"No nation can long endure as a first-class power dressed in a shabby currency." — Republican Coordinating Committee in a position paper on the dollar and international finances.

Capital Footnotes

House passage sent to the White House a bill to provide Secret Service protection for the widow and children of a president for four years after his death. Special protection for the family of President John F. Kennedy, voted for two years after his assassination in 1963, was to end late this year . . . Senate and House conferees will seek agreement on the amount of a new assistance program for graded and high schools for which the Senate voted $1.151,000,000, the House $814 million less. . . The House has passed a new military construction authorization bill which would require only 30 days notice to Congress of plans to close military bases — instead of the 120-day requirement the President vetoed.

Dutchess Youths Are Indicted in Slizewski Case

Charged with four counts of first degree robbery, one count of first degree grand larceny, and three counts of assault, second degree in connection with the alleged beating of a Rosendale man, two Poughkeepsie youths are under indictment in Dutchess County.

Authorities said Vincent Liardi, 18, of 13 South Cherry Street, and Thomas L. Weil, 16, of 70 Garden Street, both Poughkeepsie, are accused of beating and robbing Alfred Slizewski, 37, Rosendale, a bartender at the Covered Wagon Restaurant, Red Oaks Mills.

The alleged assault and robbery, police said, took place off Old Hopewell Road near White's Corners Road, Town of Wappinger, on July 18. Slizewski said he was hit on the head with a metal container and $10 was taken from him by his assailants.

Family Reunion

The third annual Carlton family get-to-gether was held Sunday at 209 Salem Street. About 75 family members attended coming from many states. Children and grown-ups wore Western outfits. The West was this year's theme. For the children a pony and horse were rented for the day, allowing them to ride all day, later there were games and an award for each child. An exhibition of Indian Dancing telling folk lore was presented by members of the Pacheco and Woods families. The cookout was followed by music, grownup Western groups who called and taught the square dance until dark. There was a late supper and more dancing to records.

Two Treated for Burns

A mother and her son were taken from Ulster Park to Kingston Hospital Tuesday afternoon by Fatum's Ambulance Service, after they suffered burns while cleaning an incinerator. An ambulance spokesman, who reported the incident, said Mrs. Pauline Angelino, 42, of 303 West 19th Street, New York, and her son, Raymond, 16, were treated at the hospital for burns.

Peking Protests Violations by Indian Troops

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China protested today against what it claimed were "successive serious violations" of Communist China's territory and sovereignty by Indian troops.

China demanded that India "dismantle" all military structures "built beyond or on the China-Sikkim border."

The Chinese also urged India to "withdraw" its armed forces and "stop all acts of aggression and provocation against China in the western, middle and eastern sectors of the Chinese-Indian border."

The note, issued by the Chinese Communist Foreign Ministry and sent to the Indian government, was broadcast by Peking's New China News Agency.

PearsonSchedules Nov. 8 Election

OTTAWA (AP)— Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson Tuesday night scheduled a general election Nov. 8 in an attempt to win a majority in the House of Commons for his Liberal party.

It will be Canada's fifth general election in eight years.

In the 1963 election, the Liberals won only 129 of the 265 seats in Commons and since then have governed with the support of minor parties. Pearson, announcing the election, said his party's position had become increasingly shaky during the summer.

"I believe that the Canadian people want to solve the big problems, to get on with the important tasks facing them, to get on with the job of building the new Canada," he said in a radio-television address.

G-E Threat Lifts

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) —The threat of a strike at the General Electric plant here has been lifted, because the employe at the center of the dispute found a job elsewhere, a union spokesman says.

Local 301, International Union of Electrical Workers, had said it would call out 3,000 workers today as a result of what it described as "the unjustifiable discharge of employe."

All a Mistake: Raft

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Movie actor George Raft pleaded guilty Tuesday to one count of federal income tax evasion, but said it was the result of a mistake.

Raft, 69, was indicted last week on six counts of tax evasion for the period 1958-63. When he is sentenced Sept. 28, the judge will dispose of the remaining counts.

Astros to Tell Story

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Gemini 5 astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. hold a news conference Thursday at space center in Houston to tell the world their story of eight days in space.

The 1840 United States dollar was first of the regular dollar series to portray the seated figure of Liberty on the obverse.

Hints From Heloise

by Heloise Cruse

Dear Heloise:

Do you know what can be done in a jiffy with a swatch of leftover drapery material, or any other fabric?

I simply press transparent adhesive-backed plastic paper to the top side of the material, smooth it carefully with my hand, turn it over, then do the same with the other side.

No hemming is necessary, and you can cut the completed job in any shape you prefer. This makes handy, easy-to-clean table runners, doilies for lamp bases, etc.

William W. Pratt

Dear Folks:

How William ever figured this one out, I'll never know!

He sent us a sample that looks like heavy upholstery material. I presume he had covered a piece of funiture with this. And, just as he says, it does not ravel.

My idea, which just hit me like a ton of bricks, would be:

Next time you cover your dining room chairs, buy some extra material, and make yourself some place mats for your dining room table! Then it would all match. With the swipe of a damp sponge, they could be cleaned in a jiffy.

If your child drops food on your upholstered dining room chairs, try using this method on it.

Also . . . the tranparent plastic does not look shiny. It is hardly noticeable.

This idea could certainly be utilized for those of you who have polished cotton kitchen curtains, and want to cover your breakfast room chairs to match. Heretofore, polished cotton was quite impractical to cover chairs with. But, not any more!

Next time you make new kitchen curtains, why not buy some extra yardage to cover your chairs and to make some place mats for your table.

The transparent plastic can usually be bought at department and dime stores.

Dear Heloise:

Have you ever tried pinning several thicknesses of nylon net over your squeegee mop, when giving the kitchen floors a quick swipe?

It's great for getting up dabs of dropped food without getting down on our hands and knees to scrape it off.

Joan Diessler

Dear Heloise:

For the gal who cooks bacon for breakfast, and always wishes that the job was already done . .

To save my clothing—and a greasy stove—I cook it this way:

I fry as much as two pounds of bacon at a time. I drain it well on paper towels, then package it separately (in breakfast-size portions) in foil, and place in my freezer.

Come breakfast time, I preheat the oven to 375 degrees (before making the coffee), then place an unopened, foil-wrapped, frozen package of bacon in the oven.

Five to eight minutes in the oven does the trick!

Dear Heloise:

My youngest child has trouble managing a bar of soap for handwashing.

I got some inexpensive shampoo, and put it in a hand lotion dispenser.

No trouble now, and the novelty encourages that little job.

Lois Bullis

If you don't have a hand lotion bottle with dispenser, one of the squirt type detergent bottles would do.

Dear Heloise:

Kerosene is a very effective product to remove crayon marks from sidewalks. Just scrub hard with a stiff brush.

It will also remove such marks from painted wood, etc.

Dear Heloise:

Do your readers know that if they save the small plastic eye droppers that come in children's vitamin bottles, they make ideal medicine dispensers for little children?

I have also found that the children enjoy taking their liquid medicine (such as cough syrup) when using these eye droppers, and you'll never spill one drop on your carpeting or floors.

LAUGHTER ON SET — Old friends Noel Coward and Sir Laurence Olivier share a joke as they meet on set near London. Sir Laurence was caught at a rare moment — without black makeup—for his starring role as the Moor in filming of Shakespeare's "Othello."

An Easy Catch

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — Police nabbed without trouble the culprit who turned in two false alarms here.

"He was waving to the firemen when they drove up," police said. They said an unidentified 5-year-old boy reached the fire alarm boxes either by standing on his wagon or a tricycle.

Old Fliers Meet

CHATHAM, Mass. (AP) — H. Roy Waite, 82, started flying in 1911. William S. Chapman, 76, started flying in 1914 and taught Amelia Earhart to fly.

Both live in Massachusetts but had not met until a few days ago. A mutual friend brought them together for some talk about pioneer flying.

Martorana Asks Plattekill POs

Plattekill supervisor Joseph Martorana has called for the construction of two new postoffices in the Town of Plattekill.

Pointing to inadequate facilities at both Modena and Plattekill, Martorana said that the increasing volume of mail and lack of required space justify new postoffices at these locations.

Martorana made his recommendation for new postal facilities in a letter to Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, copies of which Martorana sent to the U.S. Senators and to the Postmaster general.

In his request the Plattekill supervisor also asked for the retention of the Ardonia and Clintondale postoffices in their present locations. In addition Martorana pointed out rural routes should be established from postoffices located within the town of Plattekill. This move, he explained would eliminate the confusion that presently exists whereby the towns rural areas are served by six postoffices located outside the town which results in misleading postoffice addresses.

Martorana is looking forward to favorable action on his recommendations.

Move Is Defeated To Block Debate Between Only 2

NEW YORK (AL) — Two candidates for the Democratic mayoral nomination have lost their move to block a television debate between the other two Democratic hopefuls.

Rep. William F. Ryan and Councilman Paul O'Dwyer appealed to the Federal Communications Commission to cancel the debate scheduled for 9 p.m. Thursday between City Council President Paul R. Screvane and City Controller Abraham D. Beame over a local station.

Ryan and O'Dwyer contended the debate should be canceled unless all four candidates were represented. But an FCC spokesman in Washington said Tuesday there was nothing in its rules requiring a station to put all candidates for an office on at the same time.

The debate will consist of opening and closing remarks by the candidates and questions from a panel of three reporters.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner, who declined to run again after serving three terms and who is backing Screvane, said Tuesday his choice looks like the winner in Tuesday's Democratic primary.

Tuesday Beame criticized Screvane's suggestions for digging wells within the city limits to offset the dwindling water supply and urged a study of untapped water resources under Long Island.

Ryan, in a statement today, charged that the City Commission on Human Rights is grossly understaffed and "wrapped in red tape."

He said the commission is currently short 50 per cent of its senior staff.

Speno Says Portions Of Sales Tax Unfair

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A state senator who voted for the new state sales tax says portions of the levy are "unfair and uniust to our taxpayers."

Sen. Edward J. Speno, R-Nassau, called Tuesday for elimination of the "very unfair taxes" on such items as toiletries, medicinal equipment and "other items purchased in the grocery store and supermarket."

Speno said he would sponsor legislation calling for a review of the two per cent levy, which went into effect Aug. 1.

He also said he would introduce a bill that would allow businessmen to retain one per cent of the taxes they collect to help cover bookkeeping costs.

Chinese Blueprint Is Clue

Communist General Plan Is To Strangle Atlantic World

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the years ahead the Red Chinese may sorely regret their recent outline for world revolution.

It gives leaders of the non-Communist world a justification for action against revolutions and undermines the case of those opposing intervention. For example, Viet Nam.

With the Chinese blueprint in mind Secretary of State Dean Rusk Tuesday night said the Communist world's common strategy is to win control of Asia, Africa and Latin America and thus strangle the Atlantic world.

His evidence, if he needed any, is Red China's strategy as given last week in a long article by Marshal Lin Piao, minister of defense and one of the top men around Mao Tze-tung, chairman of the Chinese Communist party.

Marshal Lin said the Vietnamese war demonstrates that a "people's war" in Asia, Africa or Latin America can be waged successfully against the United States. But Red China has Western Europe in mind as a necessary target, too.

Boiled down, the argument goes like this:

The people of Asia, Africa and Latin America may not have the weapons possessed by the United States and its Western allies but, if they have the will to win, they can. But how?

The fight should be made by the people of the countryside against the cities. In the end the Western world is the city and the people of the rest of the world are the countryside.

Thus, according to this thinking, the United States and Western Europe, bit by bit, revolution by revolution, can be encircled and destroyed.

While Marshal Lin suggests that the Soviet Union, now treated with contempt by Red China, is opposed to the kind of people's war he has in mind, Rusk thinks the Soviet Union's ultimate aims are the same as Red China's.

Only Real Difference

He said the only real difference between those two worlds of communism is how "to get on with the world revolution."

The Red Chinese dismiss as inconsequential the penalties of war by saying "temporary suffering is repaid by lasting or even perpetual peace and happiness."

This, of course, is the unreal, Utopian dream that if the world was full of nothing but Communist nations there would be no war even though the Soviet Union and Red China already are good examples of how Communist nations don't get along.

Lest anyone doubt Red China would get involved in these worldwide revolutions, the marshal says:

"As for the revolutionary wars waged by the oppressed nations and peoples, so far from opposing them, we invariably give them firm support and active aid."

After that statement how could an American president, if he was reluctant to intervene in a Latin-American revolution, right in this country's backyard, be sure it was not fomented and assisted by Red China?

Determined to Help

Giving promises that, as Red China grows in strength, it will provide even more aid for revolutions around the world, the marshal says:

"The determination of the Chinese people to support and aid the Vietnamese people in their struggle against U.S. aggression and for national salvation is unshakable.

"No matter what U.S. imperialism may do to expand its war adventure, the Chinese people will do everything in their power to support the Vietnamese people, until every single one of the U.S. aggressors is driven out of Viet Nam."

The Red Chinese stop short in the marshal's outline of saying they would get directly into the war in Viet Nam. But the marshal warns the United States not to get into war with Red China.

As if talking about pancakes instead of human beings, he says. "The vast ocean of several hundred million Chinese people in arms will be more than enough to submerge your few million aggressive troops."

Rusk said he hoped a successful defense of South Viet Nam will help to change Red China's judgement.

..EDITORS: . James . Marlow will be on vacation Thursday and Friday this week and Monday next week. His column will be written in his absence by other AP staffers. Marlow will resume Tuesday, Sept. 14.

Mayor Wagner Acts to Avert Teacher Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Robert F. Wagner has entered negotiations to avert a teachers strike set for next Monday unless agreement is reached on a new contract.

Wagner met briefly Tuesday with negotiators for the AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers and the Board of Education.

Formal negotiations between the board and the union were recessed until this morning.

The union had insisted it must have a firm agreement with the board by 4 p.m. Friday, when a membership rally is scheduled. The members, 48,000 teachers, will vote then on whether to ratify a new two-year contract.

The principal issues include pay increases, higher welfare and health benefits, and improvements in working conditions.

Student Is Killed

AFTON, Wyo. (AP) — Robert W. Reynolds, 21, of Pittsford, N.Y., was killed Tuesday when the automobile in which he was riding went off Route 89 near here.

He was a student at the University of California in Berkeley.

Haiti Remains Poor Despite Aid Attempts

By LOUIS UOHITELLE

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Rats infest Haiti. They nest in the thick grass roof of a peasant's hut and feed on his meager crops. They seem to own the country road at night as they flit back and forth in the headlights.

The U.S. government once tried to do something about the rats. Mongooses were introduced into the country. But the project failed. The mongooses, instead of attacking the rats ate the peasant's chickens, adding to his burden.

For many Haitians, the mongoose project is a fair illustration of the effectiveness of foreign aid in the Western Hemisphere's poorest nation. One hundred million dollars has been spent to aid Haiti since World War II. Most of it came from the United States. But the deterioration of the country seems to continue.

Much of the aid was for road construction and maintenance. Yet the 200-mile ride from Port au Prince to Les Cayes, a southern port city, takes more than 15 hours by Jeep today. It was a four-hour trip by car in 1957, the year Francois Duvalier became president.

Near Les Cayes a huge earth mover sits abandoned on a rise in the rutted road. The initials "U.S.A." are stenciled on the doors. Weeds grow through the engine hood. Peasants in the neighborhood say the earth mover blew a tire six year ago. Before a new tire was obtained, the road project stopped and the earth mover was forgotten.

In the potentially rich Artibonite Valley, a dam and irrigation system stands as a monument to what U.S. officials describe as corruption and inefficiency in the Haitain government. More than $30 million, borrowed from the Export-Import Bank, went into the project. The money was exhausted before electric generators were installed. They were left to rust in the fields.

The Duvalier government no longer maintains the dam and the irrigation canals. They are clogged with silt, limiting agricultural development of the valley.

One aid project has been successful in recent years, and its success helps explain some of the failures.

In 1961, Duvalier signed a $3.5-million credit agreement with the International Development Bank. Under it, an institute of agricultural and industrial development was established as an autonomous branch of the Haitian government. The director, Jean Delei, a U.S. citizen, assumed control over money and hiring.

The institute set out to provide financial and technical assistance for the small peasant farmer — and also a market for his product.

This was the key feature. In the Haitian feudal economy, the peasant farmer doesn't conceive of a good market for a good crop. Cotton, growing nearly wild, always has been purchased by Port au Prince merchants for five or six cents a pound.

The institute, through a series of small loans to peasants, encouraged proper cultivation of a better grade of cotton, then paid 10 cents a pound.

The program started slowly as skeptical peasants used their loans to buy fertilizer, insecticide, seed and advice from the institute. In a matter of months, the yield on many tiny holdings jumped from 200 to 2,000 pounds per acre. The number of participating farmers in the volunteer program went from 136 in 1962 to 1,053 in 1964 to 4,600 this year. The 1965 production was 5.2 million pounds of the highest grade cotton Haiti has seen in generations.

Similar loan programs have been carried out for corn and grain, with similar results in the past 12 months, according to the institute's figures.

Steel Production Falls Off 4.5 Per Cent

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel production fell off 4.5 per cent last week to 2,413,000 tons.

The American Iron and Steel Institute announced the drop Tuesday, saying it was the result of worry over a threatened strike.

The strike, averted by a settlement last week, had been scheduled to begin at midnight tonight.

The index of production, based on weekly production for 1957-59 set at 100, stood at 120 for the Northeast.

Long Struggle for Kashmir Cause of Newest Hostilities

By MILTON BESSER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The rapid escalation of hostilities between India and Pakistan stems directly from an incident on the U.N. cease-fire line in Kashmir on Aug. 5. The underlying cause is the long struggle — on the battlefield and in the diplomatic arena — for the prize of Kashmir.

Incidents on the cease-fire line involving Indian and Pakistani forces have been mounting this year.

On Aug. 5, according to U.N. observers, a group of armed men mostly in civilian dress crossed the cease-fire line from the Pakistan side "for the purpose of armed action on the Indian side."

Says Aim Sabotage

Indian Ambassador Gopalaswami Parthasrathi told the U.N. Security Council last Saturday the invaders numbered 5,000 and were Pakistani troops in civilian guise. He said their objective was sabotage, assassination, and the capture of the summer capital, Srinagar.

He said interrogation of prisoners revealed that the planned training for the invasion began in May.

Pakistani Ambassador Syed Amjad Ali said his country totally repudiated the Indian allegations. He said that no units of the Pakistani armed forces crossed the cease-fire line. The Pakistani claim that the trouble in Kashmir amounted to an uprising by elements of the Moslem population, assisted by some civilian volunteers from across the line.

Lodges Complaint

Aly charged that India committed agression first by seizing three posts on the Kashmir side of the line in the Kargil sector in May. Pakistan lodged a complaint with the council in May but did not ask for a council meeting.

India claimed that it seized the posts in order to protect its lines of communications with the Ladakh sector, where Indian troops remain on guard against the threat of invasion by Communist Chinese forces.

Indian forces withdrew from the posts at the end of June after being assured by the United Nations that military observers would be posted in the area to assure the safety of the road. After the incident of Aug. 5 India again occupied the three Pakistani posts.

Aims for Restraint

Secretary-General U Thant stepped into the situation Aug. 9, when he began a series of almost daily private separate meetings with Indian and Pakistani representatives at the United Nations in an effort to get both sides to show restraint.

Thant had been receiving reports from U.N. officials on the increasing gravity of the situation on the cease-fire line.

The struggle between India and Pakistan over Kashmir is more than 18 years old. A short time after partition of India in mid-August 1947 into the two separate countries, armed conflict flared over Kashmir.

The state is predominantly Moslem, but its Hindu maharajah, Sir Hari Singh, acceded the state to India. Pakistan refused to recognize the act of accession and demanded a plebiscite to decide the state's future.

On New Year's Day in 1949 Pakistan and India agreed to observe the U.N. cease-fire line that left about two-thirds of Kashmir in Indian hands.

The dispute has been before the United Nations many times but it has never been resolved. Diplomatic efforts by the major powers to induce both sides to settle the dispute have also been in vain.

Fire Destroys Cruiser, Vacationers Escape

GENEVA, N.Y. (AP) — Fire destroyed a 30-foot-long cabin cruiser on Seneca Lake Tuesday, but two vacationers who had been on board escaped serious injury.

Richard Brennan, 27, of Athens, and Gordon Donaldson, 32, of Elmira were nearing Watkins Glen at the end of a 3-month trip when the fire broke out.

Both jumped overboard, police said.

The men estimated damage at $12,000.

The cause of the fire was not determined.

Body Recovered

KINGSTON, Ont. (AP) — The body of Dale Thompson, 37, of Almond, N.Y., was recovered from Lake Ontario Tuesday.

Provincial police said, however, that a search for the body of Thompson's 12-year-old son, Dale Jr., would continue.

Both were drowned in the St. Lawrence River near here Friday.

Saving Is Asked By Rocky in State Budgets

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller called on heads of state departments today to eliminate, in drafting their 1966-67 budget requests, "all activities which are no longer urgently needed."

The governor also asked the officials to recommend new or expanded programs "only where they are vital to the welfare and safety of our citizens."

Rockefeller's office made public a copy of a letter he sent to the department heads.

"I am counting on each of you," the governor said, "to review your department's programs and to request financing of them in terms of the priority of their relative importance."

He set these guidelines:

— Elimination of low-priority items.

— Reduction of expenditures for necessary programs to the barest minimum.

—Justification of all spending proposals in terms of their contribution to the people of the state.

The governor set Sept. 15 as the deadline for submitting budget requests to his office.

He will submit to the legislature late in January the budget for the fiscal year beginning next April 1.

The current state budget totals $3.5 billion.

Escapees Back

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Two prisoners who escaped from the detention unit of a hospital here were back in police custody today.

One of the prisoners, Cary J. Paniccia, 17, of Buffalo, was picked up near his home Tuesday. The other, Gerald Wagner, 24, also of Buffalo, was apprehended Monday.

The two had been sent to Meyer Memorial Hospital for mental examinations after their arrests on burglary charges, police said.

Independent Satellite

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — The European space club's first independently launched space satellite should be fired from Woomera rocket range in south Australia before the end of 1967, officials say.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By Sophie Miller

Henry DeWitt Greene, formerly of Kingston, now of Norfolk, Va., visited Kingston Aug. 30, and stopped to have a chat. As we correspond we had lots to talk about. He also had sent for some of the Fulton cachet covers, and had them processed through our central post office in Kingston from Virginia with the Clermont cancellation. There is still great interest in this Fulton cancellation, for the processed envelopes, I can show readers new decorations.

Mr. Greene left me an interesting item from his own life from which I want to quote in part: He wrote: "When I was about two years old my father and mother moved from Kerhonkson to Kingston where my father made a living hauling bluestone from the quarries to the Hudson River, a distance of perhaps ten miles. Today the bluestone business is an almost forgotten industry. Prior to 1900 this stone was used extensively by builders and for sidewalks in large cities." Mr. Greene wrote, and one can still see bluestone in many of our Rondout buildings, great slabs, beautifully cut and trimmed, square and circular, and oblong as was needed for various purposes, for window and door sills, sidewalks and foundations. No doubt all these will be destroyed with the new regime in charge. This grayish bluestone from the hills back of Kingston withstood the elements and time, but it cannot withstand the adult destruction of man, who couldn't care less, especially if they are strangers in our midst.

Mr. Greene writes about a large quarry at Stony Hollow and also at West Hurley. For some reason, he says, these stone deposits were worked by men from Ireland, who had learned their trade well from the old country. They would carefully drill holes in the rock by hand, fill the holes with black powder and set off the blast with long fuses.

Mr. Greene described how the stone fell away from the hillsides in sheets of varying sizes but of a more or less uniform thickness. Whether this was due to the skill of the quarrymen or to the rock strata itself he cannot say. He did remember the premature blasts which hurt many workers. He recalls going to a triple funeral at one time with his father, and the blast was so bad that the caskets were not opened for the services.

Mr. Greene's father's business was to haul the bluestone to the steamboat landing in Rondout where it was loaded on barges and taken to New York City. He started with two horses and finally had two teams of four hourses each. He drove one team and a hired man the other. They would leave about 4 o'clock in the morning for the quarries. There were no hard-surface roads in those days, but the entire distance from Kingston to these hills was laid with slabs of stone about 18 inches wide in the form of a track—that is, in a double row that gave traction for all four wheels of the wagon. These stones were grooved and rutted by the iron-tired wheels and the enormous loads they carried. The wagons were low swung and had no springs. The driver's seat had springs of a sort, but it was a hard ride, and Mr. Greene knew from experience.

Mr. Greene's interesting personal experience continues as he describes that about 11 o'clock the "rigs" were loaded and the return trip begun. While loading the horses had a chance to be fed from the feed box which was carried under the seat. It was Henry Dewitt Greene's job, the night before, to measure out the oats and corn from the bins in the stable into a burlap bag. He only made the trip on rare occasions, but the feed bag was his nightly chore. More from his manuscript real soon.

Bad Discarding Compounds Bids

BY JACOBY & SON
1965 Vanderbilt Cup Winners
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The bidding of today's hand is intriguing. South felt that his hand warranted some slam try after his partner raised hearts and his four club call was a cue bid to start the ball rolling. When North showed no interest by his four heart sign-off South should have let the ball drop but South continued to five diamonds as a second slam try.

North signed off again at five hearts and South was left to play his over-game contract.

Things started out nicely. West opened the eight of spades. Dummy's jack was covered by East's king and South ruffed. The king of hearts and a low heart to dummy's jack picked up the adverse trumps and at this point a diamond lead would have brought home the contract but South was in a hurry to get rid of his two low clubs.

He discarded them right away on dummy's high spades and then led a diamond. West took South's jack with his queen and led a low club. Note that if South had not taken those premature discards he could have won the trick with dummy's queen, but now he had to win with his ace.

He led a second diamond. West was in again and forced South to ruff his king of clubs. South ruffed a third diamond in dummy; ruffed a spade with his last trump; ruffed another diamond with dummy's last trump and conceded a spade trick for down one.

City Library Reports Rise In Non-Fiction

Kingstonians are reading almost as many non-fiction books as novels, the Kingston City Library stated today. Officials said that this change in reading habits is evident on a nationwide basis as well.

Some reasons for this trend are an increased interest in technical subjects, rising educational levels with more and more persons enrolled in adult education and college courses, and the simple fact that more and better non-fiction materials are being published.

Among the new non-fiction books now at the Kingston Library are:

Never Call Retreat, by Bruce Catton, is the final volume in the Centennial History of the Civil War. It traces the war from Fredericksburg through the succeeding grim and relentless campaigns to a Courthouse at Appomattox and the death of Lincoln.

The Golden Millstones, by R. F. Delderfield, is about Napolean's brothers and sisters. The Emperor was once quoted "I do not think any man was ever more unfortunate in his relations than I." This collective biography provides an interested story of the millstones hung around the neck of the most astounding man of modern times.

A Gift of Prophecy: the Phenomenal Jeane Dixon, by Ruth Montgomery, is about the extraordinary predictions of Mrs. Dixon, who publicly foretold President Kennedy's assassination and other world shaking events.

Report to Greco, by Nikos Kazantzakis, is not a formal autobiography, but rather a summing up, by a great artist, of a lifetime's ideas, work, experiences and friendships. Kazantzakis has already been acclaimed as one of the truly writers of this century.

The Beard and I, by Tommy Whitehead, is the behind-the-scenes story of the plot to convert America to Schweppervescence. Told by the wife of Commander Whitehead, the man with the beard, readers will live the hectic but often humorous life of a celebrity.

New and notable novels include:

The Winners, by Julio Cortazar, is a novel about a widely asorted group of people who win as a lottery prize a cruise—destination unknown. Their journey reads like — and is — a superb story of suspense that ranges from the most unconventional of love affairs to the violent death of one of the passengers.

Everything That Rises Must Converge, by Flannery O'Connor, is a collection of her short stories on which she was working at the time of her death. A Southerner, she wrote of the South; but her traditions do not prepare us for the oddity and beauty of her lonely fiction.

The Man With the Golden Gun, by Ian Fleming, is the last James Bond novel the late Ian Flemings wrote. It features the usual implausible derring-do and escape.

These and many more new books are now available at the Kingston City Library. The library hours are 9 a. m., Monday-Friday, and 1 to 5 p. m. Saturday.

TV Reviews, Best Bets

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A massive cram course on the history of our foreign policy over the past 20 years occupied three and a half prime evening hours on NBC Tuesday night — a record length for a television news special.

Called "American White Paper: United States Foreign Policy," the seminar undertook to explain our nation's unchanging goal from the time the Iron Curtain descended after World War II up to the moment of the broadcast with Americans fighting in Viet Nam.

As the hours moved on it became clear that NBC's point of view was that all U.S. actions from the Berlin airlift to the last bombing raid in North Viet Nam were taken simply to prevent the spread of communism and to fulfill commitments to protect the freedom of our allies.

The logistics of constructing this extraordinary program were as remarkable as its simplicity and clarity. Twenty-four film crews were among the 133 NBC staff men who filmed and researched almost 1½ million feet of celluloid to select the 40,000 feet that made up the program.

Executive Vice President William McAndrew of NBC News estimated that the production cost of the effort was "around $500,000," only part of which was paid by the program's single sponsor. The network's regular summer programs were pre-empted for the evening. Even the usual cluster on short commercials that crop up around station identification breaks were dropped.

The program began with an explanation of the development of our policy of containment as it applied to the Soviet Union from Stalin through Khrushchev and the movement of the two great powers toward nuclear showdowns.

The second part dealt with our policy as it affected peoples of the emerging and underdeveloped nations, explaining our foreign aid programs and touching on the Cuban and Dominican crises.

The third segment was primarily devoted to an explanation of how, by drawing a line on Communist encroachment, we were drawn first into Korea and then into South Viet Nam as we moved to try to contain the Chinese Reds as well.

It was an intelligent and calm analysis, particularly enlightening at a time when tragic events tend to obscure and confuse issues.

This admiring viewer would like, however, to inject one strong note of criticism. It was far, far too long a single program to impose at one sitting even on the most eager viewer. NBC would have done us all a favor if it had broken the program into three parts for showing on three successive nights.

New Job for Conferees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional conferees have the job now of squaring separate bills passed by the Senate and House to finance a new assistance program for grade and high schools.

The measure passed by the Senate Tuesday granted $1,151,000,000 to carry out the program. This is $814 million more generous than the House bill but $144 million less than President Johnson asked.

Approves Earlier Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has sent President Johnson to sign into law a bill permitting military personnel to get paid up to three days early when a pay period ends on a weekend or a legal holiday.

Two Men Arrested On Larceny Count, Flim-Flam Game

Two men were arrested Tuesday afternoon by BCI Investigators Charles Teelon and Michael Maloney and Ellenville village police on charges of petit larceny in connection with an alleged flim-flam game.

Booked on the charges were David William Burns, 20, of 143 Main Street, city, and Victor Scott Williams, 27, of Michigan and Florida, and now a resident of Port Ewen.

Teelon said the men pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Abram Smith, Town of Rochester, and each paid a $25 fine and were ordered to make restitution of $10.

According to troopers, Burns and Williams had attempted to pull the flim-flam at another service station, but were unsuccessful. Troopers were notified and investigated.

Meanwhile, Burns and Williams stopped at Wright's Service Station, Napanoch. They purchased gasoline and handed a $20 bill to the attendant. In subsequent moves of quick money exchange, the pair left with $10, troopers said. The two men were picked up in Ellenville by village police and turned over to state police.

An Important Message - - From Mayor John J. Schwenk!

"The state election law provides that, upon presentation of certain nominating petitions, any citizen who is a member of a political party may have his or her name appear as a candidate on the official nominating ballot on Primary Day.

"Arthur A. Davis, Jr., who aspires to be elected Surrogate Judge, and to be a candidate for that office on the Republican ticket, complied with the law and his name will appear on the Republican nominating ballot on Primary day, September 14th.

"Mr. Davis is an experienced lawyer of unquestioned character and reputation and would make an excellent Judge of the Surrogate Court.

"By his courageous action in utilizing the direct primary method of placing his candidacy before the 27,514 members of the Republican party of our county, he has made it possible for all members of the party to have a part in selecting the candidates to represent the Republican party on election day.

"Now that this privilege has been won for all Republicans, I urge all members of our party to go to the polls on Tuesday, September 14th and vote for the candidates they want to represent them on the election day ballot.

BREAD-AND-BUTTER LETTERS NEED NOT BE LITERARY GEMS

When you have been staying overnight, or for a longer time, at someone's house, it is absolutely necessary that you write a letter of thanks to your hostess within a few days after the visit.

Bread-and-butter letters, as they are called, are the stumbling blocks of visitors. Why they are so difficult for nearly everyone is hard to determine, unless it is that they are often written to persons with whom you are on formal terms, and the letter should be somewhat informal in tone.

Very likely you have been visiting a friend and must write to her mother, whom you scarcely know; perhaps you have been included in a large and rather formal house party and the hostess is an acquaintance rather than a friend; or perhaps you are a bride and have been on a first visit to relatives or old friends of your husband, but strangers, until now, to you.

As an example of the first, when you have been visiting a girl friend and must write a letter to her mother, you begin "Dear Mrs. Town" at the top of a page, and nothing in the forbidding memory of Mrs. Town encourages you to go further. It would be easy enough to write to Pauline, the daughter. Very well, write to Pauline then—on an odd piece of paper — about what a good time you had, how nice it was to be with her. Then copy the note you composed to Pauline on the page beginning "Dear Mrs. Town." You have only to add "Love to Pauline, and thank you again for asking me." End it "Very sincerely," or better, "affectionately" and there you are!

Don't be afraid that your note is too informal; older people are always pleased with any friendly and spontaneous expressions from the young. Never think, because you cannot write a letter easily, that it is better not to write at all. The most awkward note imaginable is better than none, for to write none is the depth of rudeness, whereas the awkward note merely fails to delight.

The clothes of the bride's and groom's parents as well as those of the wedding guests are described in the Emily Post Institute booklet entitled "Correct Clothes for a Wedding Reception." Area Society Will Sponsor Field Trip On Thursday Night

Those who prefer the sounds of nature to the sounds of the juke box and television will be interested in a field trip being sponsored by the John Borroughs Natural History Society on Thursday.

The trip, to observe the sounds of night, will be led by Fred Hough, a member of the Research and Records Committee of the Society, and author of "Thrushes of Ulster County, N. Y.," and "The Monarch Butterfly — In and Out of Ulster Co., N. Y." He is one of the very few people in the country taking part in the intensive study of the migratory monarch butterfly by means of banding.

Bream Pitches Three-Hitter for 7 to 2 Victory

Lions Club trounced Lou's, 7 to 2, behind the 3-hit pitching of Ted Bream to win the City Baseball League's post-season playoff series.

The Lions Club hurler had a 1-hit shutout until Lou's erupted for their two runs in the bottom of the seventh. He walked 4 and struck out 11.

Ken Heppner and Gene Stoutenburg of Lou's yielded only four hits between them but eight walks, errors and passed balls contributed to their downfall. Heppner, who gave up six runs in 4 2/3 innings, was tagged with the loss.

Mike Derrenbarher's double for the Lions was the only extra baser in the game.

Comedy of Errors

Three passed balls, two walks, a catcher's error and Bream's infield single accounted for three Lions runs in the third.

In the Lions fifth, Pete Watzka was safe on an error and proceeded to steal second, third and home. Gary Johnson walked, stole second and third and scored on Bill DuBois's single. Bart Williams' single sent DuBois to third and he scored on a passed ball.

The one clean Lions marker came in the sixth when Mike Derrenbacher doubled, stole third and rode home on Pete Watzka's sacrifice fly.

Lou's averted a shutout in their turn at bat, as Ed Burns was safe on an error. He scored on a Walt Harder single and the latter came home on Ron Secreto's hit.

Lions Club meets Herzog's in a post-season game Sunday at 2 p. m. at Dietz Stadium.

Pick Nicklaus In World Series

AKRON, Ohio (AP- — The English bookmakers are quoting even money on Jack Nicklaus to win the World Series of Golf this weekend. If he does, it'll be a great comeback on a par 70 course that stymied him last month.

Cyril Stein, managing director of Ladbroke's, largest bookmaking house in England where betting establishments are legal, quotes Nicklaus as the best bet.

Behind Nicklaus are U.S. Open champ Gary Player of South Africa at 6 to 4, British Open titlist Peter Thomson of Australia at 8 to 1 and Texan Dave Marr, PGA champ, at 10 to 1.

The $77,500 World Series is for only the winners of the four major tournaments. They'll compete in 36 holes over the Firestone Country Club's 7,165-yards.

At this same course last month, Nicklaus had a 23-over-par 303 for 72 holes. But he has had great success at Firestone, shooting par or better while winning two previous World Series events.

The quartet will shoot 18 holes each Saturday and Sunday. The final six holes of each round will be televised (NBC- in color from 4 to 5:30 p.m., EST.

Canada Cup Has Rugged Layout

MADRID (AP) — The big-name golfers from far-off places had better be hitting them right when the 1965 Canada Cup golf match opens at the tough 7,000-yard Club de Camp course here Sept. 30.

If they are not, a pair of smooth playing hometown boys, Spain's Angel Miguel Gutierrez and Ramon Sota, may romp home ahead of the field on an 18-hole layout they know like the back of their hands.

The United States is sending the powerful 24-year-old Jack Nicklaus and Champagne Tony Lema here to defend the Cup the American team has won four years straight. But the local betting is that unless Nicklaus pulls one of his famous finishes and Lema is hitting them long and straight the Cup may well spend a year in Spain.

Fred Corcoran, tournament director for the International Golf Association, looked over the Club de Campo course Tuesday and said it was in perfect condition and "a real championship course which will test the greatest champions playing today.

Members at the Club de Campo have been relegated to a spare nine-hole course for the past two weeks to keep the championship 18-hole course with its tough par 72 fresh and clean for the Cup play.

A record 34 national teams have been enrolled this year, Corcoran said, bringing 78 of the world's best golfers here for the Cup play, which runs for four days through Oct. 2.

First played in Canada in 1953, the Canada Cup attracts international golfers who play for fellowship and honors rather than big money, Corcoran said.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO

Freeman Sports Editor

In the years to come, when Bill Van Aken is regaling his grandchildren with tales of his golf derring-do in the early years, he'll not be wanting for material.

But of all the wondrous tales about his illustrious career as an amateur golfer, the really big one will be about that gorgeous September Labor Day in 1965. The day he spanked a magnificent 7-iron shot 2½-feet from the pin on Wiltwyck's 18th green, canned his birdie-3 and became the Kingston Area Round Robin champion for the first time.

It was a spectacular triumph because he had to beat the finest all-round golfer ever developed in Ulster County on his home course. And then by only a single poin in that round robin, match play-medal, plus and minus scoring system that many folks regard as real crazy. He can tell them he came to Wiltwyck leading Leon Randall by only three points and he had never shot better than 74 at the big, sprawling uptown layout. Nobody beats Leon with only a 3-point lead at Wiltwyck. But it happened on this glorious early September day.

• This One He Had to Win

The kids will never comprehend all the factors involved nor can they ever grasp the true significance of grandpa's victory that day. They'll listen attentively as he unwinds those happy tales and then agree among themselves that grandpa was something special, which he was in those vintage years.

But they won't know that at age 40, grandpa hit the ball farther and straighter off the tees than any time in a 20-year career of rough and tumble tournament play. He may tell them that his prestige as a golfer was on the line when he entered the 1965 competition against two old and respected protagonists. True, he had won several club titles at Woodstock and Wiltwyck, the Woodstock Open, the Kingston City match play event, but he had been the "patsy" in two previous appearances in the round robin. A third humiliating defeat in this head to head confrontation with the two other members of the Big Three would have been disastrous. His prestige would have hit rock bottom and at age 40 as a working man it would not have been easily restored. The critics would have scoffed at lesser accomplishments.

• The Lead That Slipped Away

Grandpa could tell the kids how he took the lead on the third hole at Twaalfskill and held it through 39 holes, despite a superbly honed 67 by Randall at Woodstock that easily could have been a 63 or 64. He could recall that he was shooting his best round ever (even par 72) at Wiltwyck when suddenly on the 50th hole he found himself trailing Leon by 4 points and nobdy picks up four points on Leon in four holes. But he did. He did it with a superbly played trap shot on 15, a crisp chip shot on 17 for a birdie-4 and, of course, that 7-iron shot on 18. He might recall that George Hughes was having his troubles in this tournament but suddenly he ran down a 12-foot birdie putt on 17 making it a lot tougher to overhaul Randall. Had Hughes missed the putt and settled for a par-5, grandpa would have gone off the 18th (and 54th) tee all even with Leon. Maybe things would have been different. Maybe the 7-iron shot never would have happened. Who knows.

• Some Personal Ruminations

This tremendous tournament got off to an unprecedented start on Twaalfskill's huge, rolling, tricky No. 1 green. Randall and Van Aken birdied it and Hughes nicked the cup. Three birdies on that "par 3" green would have been incredible. Next time you hear about it being done, please let us know . . . Van Aken's victory restored the prestige of the tournament . . . Another runaway victory and we would have seriously considered changing the format . . . The attendance at the three rounds was respectable, a sharp increase over those for the club championships . . . Van Aken's booming tee shots amazed the crowds. He is hitting the ball as straight and as long as any time in his 20-year career . . . Van Aken's tribute to Randall as a putter: "Any time Leon is on the green with a putter in his hand, I figure he can make the putt from any distance." . . . Hughes admitted he had some mixed emotions when he lined up that birdie putt on No. 17 at Wiltwyck. But he played it straight . . . A couple of incidents during the tournament will never get into print but to this observer they reveal the fine camaraderie that exists among these three fine competitors . . . We launched these young men on their careers via the Herdegen Memorial, the Kingston City match play and more recently the Round Robin . . . Humble in victory and gracious in defeat, they exemplify the highest ideals of the amateur sportsman.

White Sox Are Beaten By Indians

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox let the big one get away from them Tuesday night in a display of pitching futility which is rare for Al Lopez' corps.

The White Sox, who face the league-leading Minnesota Twins for the final time this season in a two-game set beginning tonight, scored four runs in the first inning but before the game was over the Cleveland Indians had carved out a 9-5 triumph.

The loss dropped the Sox five games behind the Twins.

Ordinarily, the White Sox can win a pair of games with four runs and usually Lopez would be doing a slow burn over blowing such a lead.

"Sure it was a big game for us," said Lopez. "They're all big and all losses are hard to take. But we simply didn't have the pitching and when you don't have the pitching any lead can be overcome.

"I used seven pitchers in the doubleheader Monday," said Lopez. "It was obvious (Juan) Pizarro didn't have it. I went for Tommy John hoping he'd give me a couple of good innings before going for the knuckleballers. But John didn't have it, either.

"We have to beat the Twins twice now but even if we had beaten Cleveland we still would have to win twice from Minnesota," he added.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore swept New York 4-2 and 9-5 and Detroit trimmed Boston 5-3.

The loss was tough to take for the White Sox in one respect — utility infielder Chico Salmon. It was Salmon's homer with the bases-loaded that capped a five-run inning and pushed the Tribe ahead to stay.

Chisox Killer

Salmon came into the game with a .242 average. He had hit two previous home runs and had only six runs-batted-in. All three of his homers and nine of his 10 RBI have come at the expense of the White Sox.

It looked as if the Sox were going to pull within four games of Minnesota when they scored four times in the first inning as Moose Skowron broke an 0-for-20 slump with a run-scoring single. The Moose also contributed his 17th homer in the third inning to put Chicago ahead 5-1.

Cleveland, however, lashed out 17 hits — four by Rocky Colavito and three each by Chuck Hinton and Leon Wagner.

The Yankees' double loss to Baltimore extended their losing streak to seven, their longest since 1953, and put them within one loss or one Minnesota victory of being eliminated from the race.

Seven Straight

The Orioles ran their winning string to seven, winning the opener behind Sam Bowens' two-run homer and taking the nightcap as Charley Lau drove in three runs with a double and a single and Boog Powell clouted a two-run homer.

Detroit snapped Boston's four-game winning streak, breaking a 3-3 tie in the seventh on John Sullivan's single and Ray Ovyler's double. Norm Cash hit a two-run homer for the Tigers. Boston's Billy Monbouquette suffered his 18th defeat against eight victories.

Mays Selected On All Ballots

CINCINNATI (AP) — Willie Mays became the first unanimous choice in the history of the National League Most Valuable Player awards when all 50 writers and sportscasters on the selection panel cast their votes for him for August.

The 34-year-old outfielder kept the San Francisco Giants in the thick of the pennant race with 17 home runs for the month. He drove in 29 runs in 31 games and moved past Lou Gehrig into fifth place in the all-time standings by hitting his 494th career home run Aug. 29.

The closest that any player came to Mays' vote in the past 36 monthly awards was Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs, who got 41 of 50 ballots in May, 1964.

Giants Rip Dodgers, Take First

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers wish the Giants had left their Hart in San Francisco.

They had to leave Juan Marichal there, but they brought Jim Hart with them and as a result, the Dodgers are out of first place in the National League for only the 18th day this season.

Hart drove in all of the runs with a single and a homer Tuesday night as the Giants jumped into the lead for the first time by trimming Los Angeles 3-1.

The victory, their fourth straight, put the Giants two percentage points ahead of the Dodgers, one-half game ahead of Cincinnati, one in front of Milwaukee and four ahead of Pittsburgh.

Sweep Series

The triumph also gave them a sweep of the two-game series, a sweep accomplished without the help of 20-game winner Juan Marichal, who was banned from Los Angeles because of his batswinging incident with Dodger catcher John Roseboro.

The two-day ban, in effect, extended Marichal's eight-day suspension over the incident to 10, which puts him nine days ahead of Hart.

The third baseman-left fielder was hit with a one-day suspension July 25 by Giants' Manager Herman Franks for breaking training regulations. Franks at first said the suspension was indefinite but reinstated Hart after he went to the manager the next day and apologized.

Since then Hart has been greatly responsible for pushing the Giants to the top. In 90 games before the suspension, he batted .281 with nine homers and 47 runs batted in. But in just 44 games since, he is hitting .323 while slamming 12 homers and driving in 36 runs.

The Dodgers also felt Hart's bat Monday as he hit a two-run homer that tied the game 5-5. The Giants went on to win 7-6 in 12 innings.

In the only other NL game Tuesday, Cincinnati whipped Pittsburgh 5-0.

Los Angeles is idle today while the Giants play Houston.

Hart's first-inning single, following singles by Jesus Alou and Willie Mays, put the Giants ahead 1-0. The Dodgers tied it against Bob Shaw in the third on doubles by Wes Parker and Roseboro.

Two-Run Homer

Then, in the fifth, Claude Osteen walked Mays, and Hart connected for his 21st home run into the center field pavilion. Masanori Murakami relieved Shaw with one on and two out in the eighth and set down the Dodgers the rest of the way.

Sammy Ellis gained his 18th victory against eight defeats, limiting the Pirates to three hits and striking out 10. The Reds put the game away with four runs in the fourth inning, two on Frank Robinson's double and the last on John Edwards' homer. Don Cardwell started his own downfall by hitting Vada Pinson with a pitch.

Adios Vic Tops Bret Hanover

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Adios Vic won two of three heats and captured the 3-year-old Horseman Futurity Pace Tuesday despite a world record-equalling performance by Bret Hanover.

Bret Hanover, driven by Frank Ervin, matched the world record for the mile of 1:55 in his first heat victory at the Indiana State Fairgrounds, but Adios Vic swept the next two.

The record was established by Adios Harry, a 4-year-old, at Vernon Downs, N. Y., in 1955.

Bret Hanover, who had lost only one previous race, also to Adios Vic, trailed by a length in the second heat. Adios Vic, driven by Jim Dennis, was timed in 1:56 3-5 in that one.

In the run-off, Adios Vic nipped Bret Hanover by a nose and won the $34,838 race. The winning time was 2:04 4-5.

Before this pace, Bret Hanover had won 38 of 39 heats. The only loss was to Adios Vic two weeks ago at the Illinois State Fair in Springfield. Adios Vic is owned by Victor and Morris Zienfield of Maywood, Ill.

Adios Vic's winning share of the purse was $14,764. Bret Hanover collected $11,260 and boosted his total winnings to $371,453.

Spa Raceway Sets Many New Record

SARATOGA SPRINGS—New betting handle records and one of the largest season attendance marks were recorded at Saratoga Raceway during the Summer Meeting, which closed Aug. 28.

Wagering for the 85 nights was $16,717,542, topping the previous Summer high of $15,774,674 set during 75 nights in 1962. The total attendance of 342,256 was second best to the 1962 record of 351,159.

Several records were broken during the past Summer, most of them failing when the incomparable Bret Hanover raced here July 3. The single night attendance mark of 9,304 and one night handle of $391,512 were set that night, topping the previous peaks of 8,173 and $333,575.

Jets Ask Waivers on Huarte; Lions Drop Night Train Lane

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

John Huarte has finished out of the money in the first division of the Sonny Werblin Stakes — the world's richest race for fledgling pro quarterbacks.

But it's a good bet that the Heisman Trophy winner hasn't made his last bid for the New York Jets' signal-calling job.

Huarte, signed by Jets' owner Werblin for approximately $200,000 after his brilliant senior year at Notre Dame, was one of six players put on waivers by the American Football League club in Tuesday's final preseason roster cutdown.

There was little doubt, however, that Huarte — who failed to beat out either fellow rookie Joe ($400,000) Namath or second-year man Mike Taliaferro for a spot on the varsity — would remain on the Jets payroll despite his supposed availability today for the waiver price of $100.

Some Shufling Due

Should any of the other seven AFL clubs be willing to take on his salary by claiming him, the Jets probably will remove his name from the waiver list and restore him to their roster, now one below the league limit of 38.

If the waivers clear, Huarte will go on the Jets' taxi squad and be eligible for promotion after two weeks.

Former stars Dick (Night Train) Lane and Clarence Peaks had less security than Huarte after being cut by National Football League teams in that league's next-to-last squad reductions.

Lane, a 13-year pro, was released by the Detroit Lions while Peaks, a top fallback for eight seasons, was cut by the Pittsburgh Steelers as NFL clubs reached the 43-player level, three over the limit for season openers in two weeks.

Among the other Jets cut loose were rookie halfback Bob Schweikert, who also had received a sizeable bonus, and defensive tackle Gordy Holz, a 1964 regular.

The AFL champion Buffalo Bills asked waivers on seven players, including tackle Jim Davidson and linebacker Al Atkinson, their Nos. 1 and 3 draft picks. The Jets immediately claimed Davidson and the Ohio State alumnus' name was withdrawn and placed on the Buffalo injured list.

Denver Drops Lee

Denver cut lend-lease quarterback Jacky Lee, obtained last season from Houston on condition that he be returned after this season. The Broncos also released five-year defensive back Jim McMillan.

Running back Sid Blanks, a rookie sensation with Houston last season, went on the injured reserve list. He is recovering from knee surgery and will be ineligible for the Oilers' first four league games.

Cleveland asked waivers on Archie Roberts, the former Columbia passing wizard. The Browns, who are putting Roberts through medical school, are counting on the young quarterback going unclaimed.

The New York Giants placed two injured veterans, defensive tackle John LoVetere and linebacker-center Mickey Walker, on the waiver list. If they are not picked up by another club, they'll go on the Giants' disabled list for at least four games.

'Y' Cage League Meets Tonight

Managers and representatives of teams interested in the YMCA Basketball league are invited to attend the first meeting of the circuit, tonight, 7:30 p. m., in the lobby of the "Y".

Physical director Bud Sims and secretary Lou Schafer will attend. It is expected that a change of constitution and by-laws will be made. The idea of one or two leagues will also be discussed.

Information may be obtained by phoning the YMCA.

Clock Strikes For the Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — The magic number is one for the New York Yankees and, for the first time in six years, they would like to forget all about it.

The extension of a seven-game losing streak — their longest in 12 seasons — against Washington tonight or a Minnesota victory at Chicago will mathematically end the Yankees' futile bid for a record sixth straight American League pennant.

Now 20½ games behind the front-running Twins, New York is headed for its worst finish since 1925, when the club woundup seventh in an eight-team league, 27 games off the pace.

Army Gridders Set For Sept. 18 Opener

WEST POINT, N. Y.—Army football followers who saw the spring intrasquad game have a good idea what the Cadets will send against Tennessee on Saturday, Sept. 18, at Knoxville in the 1965 grid opener for both teams.

The offensive and defensive platoons which performed that evening in May haven't changed very much during the two weeks of twice-a-day workouts here. And, barring injuries, it doesn't look like there will be any major switches before the Volunteer contest.

Coach Paul Dietzel and his staff put nine of the 15 returning lettermen on the defensive unit, and they are still there. Only two new faces appear. Frank Cosentino, a senior from Maplewood, N. J., who played offensive quarterback behind Carl Stichweh for two seasons, is at one safety spot. He was there in the spring. Steve Lakamp, a sophomore from Cincinnati, has gained the edge at a tackle job. That's the lone defensive switch since spring.

The nine lettermen by position and hometown are: ends Dave Rivers, Richmond, Ky., and Tom Schwartz, St. Paul, Minn.; tackle John Carber, Langhorne, Pa.; middle guard Vince Casillo, West Hempstead, N. Y.; linebackers Pete Braun, Westfield, N. J., and Townsend Clarke, Newport, R. I.; cornerbacks Sam Bartholomew, Kingsport, Tenn., and Don Dietz, Little Rock, Ark.; and safety Ed Noble, Jacksonville, Fla.

Offensive Lettermen

Four other lettermen are on the offensive eleven. Center Dave Ray of Augusta, Ga., bothered by a knee injury, and Barry Nickerson of Miami, a place kicking specialist, are award winners who didn't make the first 22. The backfield has Mark Hamilton, St. Petersburg, Fla., at fullback; Sonny Stowers, Chesapeake, Ohio, at tailback; Carl Woessner, Dayton, Ohio, at flanker back; and Fred Barofsky, La Grange, Ill., at quarterback. All but Woessner are lettermen.

Tight end Sam Champi, East Orange, N. J., is the only veteran on the offensive line. Other probable starters are: split end Terry Young, Shillington, Pa.; tackles Mike Neuman, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Don Roberts, Welch, W. Va.; guards Dick Black, Wenatchee, Wash., and John Montanaro, White Plains, N. Y.; and center Tom Dusel, Ridgewood, N. J.

Cornell Student Killed

POINT PLEASANT, N. J. (AP)—James Garside, 20, a junior at Cornell University, was killed Tuesday when his car smashed through a guard rail on the Lovelandtown bridge and plunged into the Point Pleasant canal.

Navy divers from the Earle Ammunition Depot recovered the body from 21 feet of water.

Police said Garside, who lived at Fair Lawn, N.J., had a summer job here at a yacht club.

Trout Unlimited Has Conference

People and Trout will be the theme of the National Conference of Trout Unlimited, slated Sept. 10-12, at Boyne Mountain Lodge, near Boyne Falls, Michigan.

The purpose of the meeting is to bring together members from the 31 national chapters and Canada, with professional conservationists, in a workshop seminar on how people can work cooperatively and constructively to preserve trout fishing.

William G. Bentley, Chief, Bureau of Fish, New York Conservation Dept., will be among those on a discussion panel, to be moderated by Dr. Donald F. Womer, chairman, Michigan Council, Trout Unlimited.

Others on the panel will be G. C. Armstrong, Administration of Sport Fisheries, Ontario; Senator Carl W. O'Brien, chairman, Senate Conservation Committee, Michigan; Dr. Howard A. Tanner, chief, Fish Section, Michigan Dept. of Conservation; O. L. Wallis, Dept. of the Interior and A. N. Whitney, chief, Fisheries Management, Montana.

The three-day program begins on Friday, Sept. 10, with registration in the afternoon and dinner at 6 p. m. Informal trout discussions and excellent fishing movies will follow the dinner.

Sunday morning's terminal sessions will be topped by a red balancing clinic and professional fly-tying demonstrations.

"This conference promises to bring together many of North America's outstanding talent in the realms of trout management, administration, writing and top trout anglers. For this reason everyone interested in perpetuating trout fishing and clean, clear water in which trout live are welcome to attend," reports R. D. Semeyn, executive secretary, Trout Unlimited.

Firm Started New Industrial Era for Saugerties

KEEPING THE RECORDS—Modern computing methods are used to keep the records for Ulster County's second largest industry. Mrs. Camilla Tompkins of Pine Grove operates one of the office machines. The office is air conditioned.

FerroxcubeMarking 15th Anniversary

Working Force of Company Up From 20 Employes in 1950 to Present 1,000

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN
Freeman Staff Writer

A new industrial era in Saugerties emerged concurrently with the rapid expansion of Ferroxcube Corporation of America to the leading industry in the township as it announced its 15th anniversary.

Saugerties history records the rise, fall and gradual fading of many industries which fed the economy of the community.

Among the outstanding in the past 250 years were stone quarrying, brickmaking, icecutting, resorts, bookbinding, papermaking, mushroom growing and dressmaking. The cement industry in nearby Town of Catskill also added to the economy of the community.

Greatest Production

Now with the greatest production ever recorded and probably covering the greatest dollar value of business, Ferroxcube has made electronics the leading industry of Saugerties.

The continuous expansion of Ferroxcube to a position of Ulster County's largest employer keeps Saugerties in pace with the Space Age.

Ferroxcube started in business in 1950 with less than 20 employes. Last month the firm hired its 1,000th employe, making it the largest industry in Saugerties and the second largest in the county. Only International Business Machines Corp., Town of Ulster is larger.

Ferroxcube was established in a combined effort by Sprague Electric Company of North Adams, Mass., and North American Philips Company of New York City. From this humble beginning, the firm proceeded to establish a leading market position in the field of ferromagnetic ferrites used as components in television and radio.

Symbol Explained

The name, Ferroxcube, comes from ferrous oxide, (iron oxide) used in conjunction with other materials. The cube, symbolically is the elementary cell in the crystal structure of the ferrite product.

The new firm started in the East Bridge Street plant formerly occupied by General Electric Co. in Saugerties village.

The first major change in management was in 1957 when North American Philips purchased complete control of the organization from Sprague. At this point in its history, Ferroxcube, with a new technology pouring from its laboratories, entered the field of professional ferrite devices for the telecommunications industry.

The firm started supplying the computer industry in 1959 with its abundant ferrite experience by providing International Business Machines Corp a major share of its computer memory cores.

Opened Annex

About that time increased business forced the opening of an annex at Russell Street, Saugerties. This was a result of an upward product integration toward memory planes and memory stacks for computers. Regional sales mushroomed into a national coast-to-coast scope with these products.

Ferroxcube moved into its new plant on the Churchland Road, Mt. Marion, in the summer of 1962. This provided 85,000 square feet. It was not long before work was started on a 45,000 feet addition. During this period business expanded beyond the current facilities and production continued at the Russell Street plant and also the former A & P Super Market store on Main Street was utilized. More space was required for administration and the offices above the store were rented for the accounting department.

In the summer of 1964 the addition was completed and all production and administration was consolidated in the Mt. Marion plant.

These modern facilities provided the fertile atmosphere for new talent. With the new talent, new ideas were spawned and this resulted in new and more sophisticated product lines including a complete line of flying and contact recording heads and memory systems.

Reaches Mile Post

Last month, Ferroxcube reached a significant mile post in its history, the hiring of its 1,000th employe. Each succeeding month new sales and production records are broken. The pages of the Wall Street Journal indicate that the electronics industry has received another giant-sized boost with the announcement of new federal space projects.

The growth of Ferroxcube has in no small measure resulted in the continuous growth of the Town of Saugerties.

The local corporation is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Consolidated Electronics Industries —a publicly held, widely diversified company listed 292 in Fortune's 500.

Fifteen years ago Philips Lamp NV in the Netherlands discovered the ferrite which resulted in the formation of Ferroxcube to manufacture a revolutionary new ceramic material in the United States.

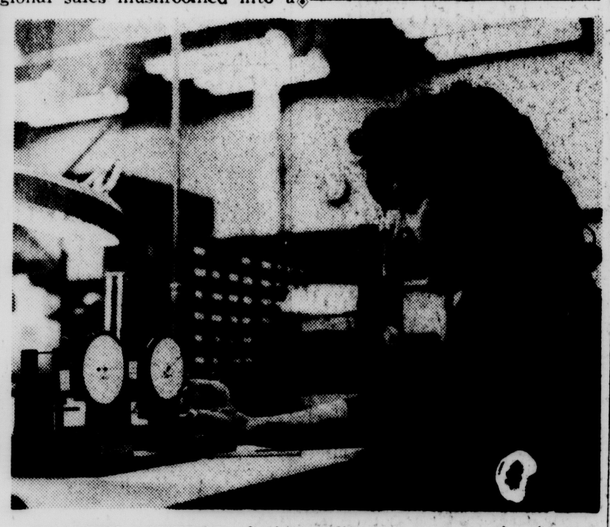

WORKING ON A STACK—Accurate soldering of nearly 50,000 pin-point connections are a routine task for personnel of the Memory Stack Department. Left is Mrs. Thomas Murray of Kingston, and right Mary Mayone of Saugerties.

FIRST AND 1,000TH EMPLOYE—Two employes represent a milepost in the 15-year history of Ferroxcube Corporation. Miss Madeline Carrado of Cementon (seated) is the 1,000th employe hired. She joined the staff last month in the recording head assembly department. Standing is Mrs. Irene B. Mills of the Sales Department, who is the first employe. MONITORING TEMPERATURE—Tube kiln operation is controlled and monitored at this precise temperature and time indicator panel. The operator is Mrs. Charlotte Winnie of Barclay Heights.

QUALITY CONTROL—Strict quality assurance testing insures conformance to rigid standards. Mary Faurote of Kingston checks the scales.

MEMORY SYSTEM DEVELOPMENT—This is the prototype development being carried on within the Memory Systems Development Department at Ferroxcube. The operator is Al Maurer of Woodstock. Frank Sandford is in the background.

PLANE WIRING DEPARTMENT — Skilled personnel string tiny wires through the 20 mil centers of ferrite cores. The core planes are being construcied here. These make up a core memory stack.

Faces 5 Charges; Drivers Fined In City Court

A driver booked on five charges is due for city court hearing Sept. 15, and four others charged with speeding, were fined $15 each today.

Cornelius Kidney, 26, of 113 Hasbrouck Avenue, was charged with driving an unregistered vehicle with no proof of insurance, without a license, with unsafe tires and insufficient lights.

Police said he had refused to give them the key to the car and it was towed from where it was stopped at Broadway and Franklin Street. City court hearing was put over today to permit him time to obtain counsel. He was released under $100 bail. Detective Gurnsey Burger and Officer John Crespino had stopped him Tuesday night.

Fined for speeding were Roger Rosenkranse, 19, of Clintondale; Avis Stickles, 35, of Rosendale; Ralph Galati, 69, 1737 77th Street, Brooklyn, and Raymond Reilly, 25 of 35 Derrenbacher Street.

Nettie Trombley, 48, of 11 Meadow Street, charged with driving a vehicle with unsafe tires, was fined $5. She was represented by Attorney Hubert A. Richter. A stop-sign charge was dismissed on motion of Assistant District Attorney James H. Fisher.

CAIRO (AP) — The United Arab Republic government has accused the extremist Moslem Brotherhood of plotting to overthrow the regime of President Gamal Abdel Nasser through a campaign of terrorism and murder.

J. BURCH McMORRAN
SUPT. OF PUBLIC WORKS

Betsy Hurls . . .

mangrove inlet at Ragged Key, south of Miami.

"We told them to abandon the boats," a Coast Guard officer aid. "They waved us off."

As Betsy raged on westward across the narrow bottom of the Florida Peninsula, aiming for the Gulf of Mexico and the other coastlines ahead, word came that Nassau had been "stunned, shocked and badly damaged" by the hurricane.

Nassau Report Is Miracle

But Etienne Dupuch, publisher of the Nassau Tribune and acting premier of the islands, said in a telegram to The Associated Press that "so far we have no casualties."

This seemed miraculous in view of the 12-hour beating the 50,000 residents of the Bahamian capital took from the storm Tuesday.

Probably the greatest damage dealt by the wind on the Florida mainland was the destruction of overhead power lines which knocked out electric service to 80 per cent of Miami and Fort Lauderdale customers. This meant for many of them days of living without lights, refrigeration or cooking facilities.

House trailers were smashed and there was the other inevitable wind debris in the hurricane's wake — shattered windows, fallen signs, utility poles and trees.

'Hotel Row' Hit Hard

The water was the great destroyer. Along Collins Avenue, Miami Beach's famed "Hotel Row" was hit hard by the tides.

Water flowed three feet deep entirely across Key Biscayne, a resort and residential island off the mainland at Miami, and three barges torn loose from their moorings by the wind knocked out the island's only escape route, the Rickenbacker Causeway. Its harbor was reported "in shambles."

Key Biscayne residents had been warned to evacuate the island, but the tide there was not as high as expected and there was no report of casualties.

Canals interlacing Fort Lauderdale surged out of their banks and put several luxury apartment islands under water. On the seaside at Hollywood, the tide chewed out a portion of the east wall of the big luxury hotel, The Diplomat.

Trees Lace Trail

High water and toppled telephone poles blocked U.S. Highway 1 at Florida City, cutting the only land access route to the hard-hit Florida Keys. The Tamiami Trail, crossing Florida from Miami to Naples on the Gulf Coast was laced with fallen trees.

The sea heaped sand dunes up on Highway A1A, which runs from Miami northward near the beach, and in some sections the road was broken by the tides.

At the height of the storm, two masked gunmen broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alan E. Murray at Miami and tortured them for three hours with lighted cigarettes before fleeing with $5,000 in jewelry. Miami Beach police arrested three men trying to loot damaged stores.

Although the tides were the biggest since 1926, weather forecaster Gilbert Clark said Miami was "very lucky at that."

The highest tides were in the north wall of the eye, which struck near Homestead 20 miles south of Miami. Had it crossed the coast a few miles farther north, Clark said, Miami's flood would have been as great as the devastating one of '26.

Water flowed 3½ feet deep around the Miami Herald Building on the shore of Biscayne Bay, forcing the newspaper to postpone publication of its final edition.

The water was expected to recede rapidly with the fall of the east wind following passage of the hurricane.

At Miami, winds peaked at 105 miles an hour, well below the 135-mile blasts aimed at the city last year by Hurricane Cleo. The wall of the storm's eye bearing the worst of the winds passed 10 miles south of the city.

Forecaster Gordon Dunn of the Miami Weather Bureau said, said, "We came off rather well, as hurricanes go."

Torrential rains fell for hours, adding to the deluge from the sea. Miami's total was expected to reach 10 inches.

South Florida's $2-million avocado crop was wiped out.

"It was just ready for harvest," said grower George Cooper. "We couldn't have done a better job of getting it off the trees than Betsy did."

Near Palm Beach, the Panamanian cargo ship Amarylis was driven aground just offshore with 28 persons board, but the Coast Guard said the vessel was in no immediate danger.

In Nassau, Dupuch said there was no word on the fate of the large Bahamian islands of Abaco and Eleuthera, which were blacked out by power failure during Betsy's assault.

Dupuch called an emergency Cabinet meeting to set up relief operations. Physicians and police stood ready to fly to stricken areas as quickly as weather permitted. The U.S. government sent an offer to help.

Betsy hit dozens of big and small Florida cities on a curving, 300-mile stretch of coastline, but took its bigger toll in the metropolitan area of the lower east coast.

Then it roared across the swampy lower half of the state to the smaller communities on the west side, and toward the Gulf of Mexico.

Forecasters couldn't tell immediately what conditions the storm would meet in the gulf, how much longer it would rage the seas, or what other coastlines it might cross.

But they felt sure that it would emerge into the gulf as tough as ever — and over the warm subtropic waters which feed fury into a hurricane it could grow even more.

Once in the gulf, it must hit another coast, Dunn said, because "there is no other escape."

Tides rolling out from the 600-mile-wide hurricane boiled southward toward the north coast of Cuba and thousands of families were evacuated in fear of severe flooding.

Some 18,000 persons jammed into 143 Red Cross shelters on Florida's southern tip Tuesday night.

Reviewer Says Schimmerling Sparks Maverick Concert

A group calling themselves the Woodstock Chamber Players performed at the Maverick Sunday works of Beethoven, Mozart, and Woodstock's own Hans Schimmerling. Ilse Sass, piano, and Ruth Conway, voice, have distinguished themselves previously at Maverick performances. The three string players, Stanley Hoffman, violin, Jacob Glick, viola, and Leo Rostal, have had at one time or another some connection with Woodstock musical life.

The focal point of the concert was to hear again (if one were present at the Maverick in 1954), or for the first time, Mr. Schimmerling's Lyrica Illyrica Suite. Mr. Schimmerling is in his own words a 'Slavic Debussy.' His colorful impressionistic writing reminds us of the French master himself. In fact Mr. Schimmerling's music does not sound modern—as we are want to imagine contemporary music. It is immediately enjoyable; it depicts well the many moods found in the native Yugoslavian folksongs. It was a great pleasure to hear—the performance being especially enhanced by Ruth Conways singing. I doubt that another soloist could have filled the voice part as well. Her voice was rich; it was controlled and expressive. It contributed in large measure to the musical success of this work.

The first half of the program included a smaller Schimmerling Trio dedicated to Miss Conway's family. It was written in the same gracious style as the Suite, and was executed admirably, with special credit again going to Miss Conway.

The remainder of the program (Beethoven & Mozart) was performed with less distinction. The Beethoven sounded hurried and occasionally harsh (an exception being the Andante contible movement which was nobly played). Much of the lack of ease in the performance was attributable to a lack of rhythmic stability on Mr. Hoffman's part. The Mozart Duo appeared similarly rushed—not from a tempo taken too fast, but from some lack of musical structure within each movement. Although possessing abundant technique and a pleasing sound, Mr. Hoffman's playing lacked two necessary musical qualities — an inner warmth, and rhythmic stability. Conversely, Mr. Glick's viola playing possessed both of these. He produced an unusually rich sound; his playing was assured and sensitive. Mr. Rostal played creditably on the cello, but his playing was unnecessarily subdued. Ilse Sass played competently and musically.

It was in general a fitting musical season to celebrate the Maverick's fiftieth year. There was an appropriate mixture of the familiar and the new, both groups represented. In an age works performed, and the when things bigger and newer and more spectacular are in fashion, it is no small pleasure to be able to retreat into the quiet of the Maverick woods on a Sunday afternoon and hear, in a setting of natural beauty, chamber music of consistently high caliber. We wish for the Maverick concerts yet another fifty years of continued musical achievement. (Reviewed by Albert M. Wray)

Riding Club Sets Junior Day Sept. 19

The Woodstock Riding Club announces the Junior Riding Day, Sept. 19, at the club grounds on Ohayo Mountain.

Junior Riding Day is a day set aside for the young rider, and classes, both English and Western, are designed to give the youngsters a taste of the show ring and at the same time endeavor to instill good sportsmanship and a feeling of friendship among the exhibitors. It is a day of instruction, a day that the young showman is given an opportunity to compete with children of similar ability and talents.

Classes are in age groups, such as, "8 years of age and under," as well as to the ability of the riders, i.e., "Open to those who have never won a blue ribbon in horsemanship." For the more advanced riders in the younger set there will be open classes such as "Handy Hunters" and "Western Horsemanship." The show is open to anyone who, on January 1, 1965, had not reached their 18th birthday.

The Woodstock Riding Club feels this type of show fills a definite need for the young equestrian and earnestly hope many of the children who have a love for horses will attend the show. Judging will be by George J. Gallow of Rhinebeck, and will start promptly at 9 a. m. Co-chairmen of the show are Mrs. Patricia Jacobsen and William McGuire of Woodstock.

Interested parties may write to Mrs. Jean Morehouse, Chestnut Hill Road, Woodstock, for further information or a prize list. The Shanty Store in Kingston and The Catskill Book and Record Shop in Woodstock also have a supply of prize lists. There will be no charge for spectators, and refreshments will be available.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—France failed to join its other seven partners in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization today in congratulating the anti-Communist alliance on its 11th anniversary.

Criticism for Sale

MOSCOW (AP)—A blistering attack by Soviet Communist party leaders on former Premier Nikita Khrushchev is on sale in Moscow bookstores.

Khrushchev was capricious and ignorant and led Russia to agricultural failures, top Communists said in speeches to a meeting of the party Central Committee last March. A report of the meeting, published Tuesday, contained the harshest public criticism of the deposed premier since he was ousted last October.

Last Chance Is Theme of Closing Show at Maverick

This Sunday, September 12, from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. will be the last chance to attend one of the Maverick Gallery's breakfast openings.

As an added attraction Dean Fleming from New York City and Phyllis Yampolsky from Monticello will lead a group of the Mavericks in the creation of a super-giant cartoon, painted on the spot. The cartoon was begun at Kutsher's Art Follies some weeks ago and has been growing ever since toward Woodstock. Last reported size, three feet high and forty-four yards long.

Last Chance, is the name of the Maverick Gallery's closing group exhibition of the season. From Rockland County, Paul Hultberg is bringing a number of his enamel paintings which have been shown at the Museum of Modern Art, at the Seattle World's Fair and in numerous museums and galleries all over the country. Ottavio Manco, whose sculpture "The Lady" received favorable note earlier this season, will bring two new works from New Paltz. From the younger set of Woodstock, John Wilson will show his cat paintings. There will also be work by Di Suvero, Dacey Bush, Godwin, P. Ott, Riley, Stern, Usco, J. Wilson, Wapner.

The Maverick Gallery is on Chestnut Hill Road. Turn off Route 212 just behind the golf course in Woodstock. The Last Chance exhibition will run three weeks. Regular gallery hours are Thursday through Mondays 1 to 5 p. m. plus Fridays and Saturdays 7 to 9 p. m.

Dolores Holtz Draws Acclaim For Performance

A piano recital by the talented Dolores Holtz was given Saturday evening at the Maverick Concert Hall in Woodstock. She chose a very demanding program, including works by Mozart, Mendelssohn, Prokofieff, Chopin, and proved herself a very sensitive and appealing artist.

The Mozart Sonata in E flat major K. 282 was, after a nervous start, very well performed. Noteworthy were the lyrical legato phrases.

The Mendelssohn Variations Serieuses were offered in a profound interpretation. When this piece is more settled in her repertoire it should be a truly memorable experience.

It was in the Prokofieff and Chopin works however that the pianist displayed her gifts to the full. Tapping a reservoir of hidden power, so to speak, Miss Holtz let herself go in a performance of Prokofieff's brilliant sixth Sonata that was most impressive in its virtuosity.

The Chopin works were handled with an authoritative feeling for the style. She played the Berceuse Op. 57 with a subtlety of nuance, and the Fantasy Op. 49 with some very beautiful phrasing. The Scherzo in C sharp minor received a "big" interpretation, almost barbaric when appropriate but with the frequent filigree played with great delicacy.

Also on the program were three Chopin Etudes, Nos. 12, 7, and 11, from Opus 25. Perhaps the best performed was the expressive No. 7 in C sharp minor.

Miss Holtz later told me she would repeat this program on Nov. 17 at Town Hall in New York. I wish her great success.

This weekend marked the end of the Golden Anniversary Series of Maverick Concerts, a very successful season of art and communication.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market turned mixed early this afternoon in moderately active trading.

The list was irregularly higher for much of the morning, then began to soften.

Steels seemed to be recovering at the start from Tuesday's sharp decline, but there was no buying power behind them and they relapsed into a definite decline.

A solid front of gains by the auto stocks softened and the group had little left on the upside.

A selection of gains by key stocks among nonferrous metals, aoerspace issues, electronics and drugs was a firming influence.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .1 at 336.9 with industrials unchanged, rails off .5 and utilities up .2.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .72 at 910.83.

A weakening factor in the market was said to be steel industry discussion of a cost-price squeeze resulting from the new labor agreement.

U.S. Steel was up slightly at the start but erased the gain and showed a net loss of a full point. Fractional losses were shown by Bethlehem, Republic Steel and Jones & Laughlin.

Newcombe Favors Fellowships to Aid Poultrymen

Republican State Senatorial candidate Lloyd A. Newcombe called today for creation of college Fellowships by the State of New York for the study of ways to solve the problems of the disposal of chicken manure, that is critical in parts of the 43rd Senatorial District.

"It seems essential that a full scale study of enzymes in chicken manure be undertaken at once to discover ways of handling this by-product of the large poultry industry in the district," Newcombe said.

Newcombe suggested the possibility of State financed fellowships, following an inspection of poultry houses in Sullivan County. Sullivan County is the fifth largest egg producing county in the United States.

"Although few people like to talk or think about it, the problem of what to do with the chicken manure is a critical one. An all out scientific study of how to reduce the smell, and how to speed up the decomposition of this manure is something that should be undertakken at once. It is not enough for everyone to say there is nothing that can be done. Something must be done, both for the sake of the egg farmer, and for the rest of the community," Newcombe said.

The large chicken industry, located in the heart of one of the nations largest resort areas, has caused constant friction between egg producers, resort men, and residents of communities where large chicken farms are located.

"The egg industry is an important one to the economy of Sullivan and Ulster Counties, yet at least one bungalow colony has been forced to close because of the smell. At the present time nothing can be done with the manure by-product of eggs and chickens. A study must be made.

"I will support such Fellowships when I am elected," Newcombe said.

Rochester Board Airs State Aid, Millhook Bridge

At the regular meeting of the Town Board of the Town of Rochester it was announced that the Millhook Bridge, on the Mettacahonts Road, will be officially closed to traffic starting on Sept. 7, 1965. The detour route will be posted. The bridge will not be opened until construction of the new bridge is completed.

Supervisor Franklin S. Kelder discussed information he had received concerning a special census of the Town of Rochester. He pointed out that additional per capita State aid will be received based on the present population, and therefore if it is proven that there is an increase in population the State aid would be even greater. A motion was presented and unanimously passed that a special census be conducted in the Town of Rochester in the spring of 1966.

A letter, concerning the request of the Town Board to investigate traffic conditions on Route 209 at its intersection with Pataukunk Road, was received from the New York State Traffic Commission. The letter stated that the Traffic Commission, during the course of field study has found it desirable to establish a 40 MPH speed restriction for .6 miles easterly from the terminus of the existing 35 MPH speed zone near Cedar Street. The letter continued that in regard to the matter of whether a signal installation is warranted has not yet been resolved.

A joint meeting of the Town Board and the Planning Board will be held on Sept. 15, 1965 at 8 p. m. in the town clerk's office, for the purpose of further discussion on the possibility of enacting a junk car ordinance.

Debt Not Bad to Have If Inflation Accellerates

ROGER E. SPEAR

Q) "Will you please settle a family discussion? My husband is 65 but still active in his own business, earning $18,000 a year. We have dividends from a few stocks such as Commonwealth Edison. Our $60,000 home carries a mortgage of $36,000 on which we pay five per cent plus amortization. He will receive a $6,000 inheritance which I feel should be invested in a stock such as Lone Star Gas for income and appreciation. He insists he is going to reduce the mortgage, although land values in our area are rising ten per cent a year. What do you advise?" S. M.

A) Assuming that your husband has ample insurance, I'm going to have to take your side in this discussion. With inflation increasing and probably accelerating if the Viet Nam war continues, debt is not a bad thing to have — particularly at your low rate — since it will ultimately be paid off with cheaper dollars:

I like Lone Star Gas for its good management and yield, but if you want growth over the years and will accept less yield, I believe you would do better with Northern Illinois Gas, which has had a very strong record.

Q) "I would appreciate it a great deal if you'd explain why companies issue warrants and the technicalities of warrants for investments." J. K.

A) Almost invariably, warrants come into being by attachment to a bond issue, as a sweetener. After a period of time, warrants have no intrinsic value, since they represent solely an option to buy stock. Their value depends on the time set for them and the terms under which common stock can be purchased.

Obviously a warrant with no time limit has an advantage over one which expires in a year or two. Options are a highly leveraged form of speculation on the potential of the common to which they are related. Generally, they are strictly for the knowledgeable investor.

Feraca Confident On Hearing Today

Arguments on an appeal taking in the ruling by Supreme Court Justice John H. Pennock recently, which ordered the Ulster County Board of Elections to place the name of Joseph Feraca, Town of Esopus constable, on the primary ballot as a Republican candidate for Sheriff, was scheduled today.

The hearing was set for 1 p. m. in the Appellate Division, Supreme Court Albany.

The appeal was taken by Election Commissioner Seymour Werbalowsky, William A. Krom, who was endorsed at the County Republican Committee convention as the party candidate for sheriff, and Patrick Martoaza, (R) deputy clerk of the Board of Supervisors who filed objections originally to Feraca's designating petition.

Feraca before leaving for Albany this morning with his attorney. William P. Curran of Rosendale, said, "I am going to court today because I don't want to stop in midstream. I am going forward for the people of Ulster County because I feel I owe them something for their encouragement and good wishes."

Stating that he was "not worried" about the outcome of today's court hearing, Feraca said, "After all this fuss to keep me off the primary ballot, I am confident that justice will prevail."

Arthur A. Davis Jr., county attorney was to attend today's session in Albany, and Harry Gold, attorney, planned to appear.

Last week at the drawing for positions on the primary ballot for next Tuesday's election, Feraca drew the number one spot.

Democrat Chairman Critical Of Schwenk on Gallo Choice

The chairman of the Democratic City Committee says he doesn't think the Republican party was interested in who was to succeed Joseph F. Carroll Jr., resigned alderman-at-large.

James T. McCardle, who holds the leadership post, in a statement to the press criticized the absence of two Republican aldermen from the meeting, that of the city chairman, John Ray Mayone, and Mayor John J. Schwenk's failure to indicate a preference for the job.

Carroll, who resigned at a special meeting of the Common Council last Friday night, and who formerly served as Republican city chairman, was replaced by a Democrat, T. Robert Gallo of the Ninth Ward through election held at the meeting.

Gallo's chair in the council as representative of the Ninth Ward is vacant, and McCardle indicated in his statement that he is interested in the job if Mayor Schwenk intends to name a Democrat to he post.

Prior to meeting it had been assumed that the Council (Republican) would follow normal procedure and elect John Machione (R) 12th Ward majority leader to Carroll's place.

But by the time the vote was 6-3 in favor of Gallo, Machione, who was last to vote moved that the Democrat alderman be elected unanimously by the body. The motion carried.

Mayor Schwenk's comment on the matter was "I'm unhappy about the selection of a Democrat as alderman-at-large since the people originally elected a Republican for that office." The term runs out in 1966.

McCardle's statement follows: "I noted with interest, the reaction of Mayor Schwenk over Alderman Gallo's election as alderman-at-large. I detect a bit of "sour grapes" in his statement. First of all, if he is to be displeased with anyone, it should be himself and his city chairman. Obviously neither is capable of providing the leadership necessary to bring about their wishes. Lack of leadership has been a quality displayed by this administration since it assumed office.

"Frankly, I do not think that the Republican Party was interested in who was elected to succeed Mr. Carroll. If they were, why wasn't two of their aldermen present for the meeting. If the aldermen had valid excuses for not attending the meeting, and I presume they did, why then, wasn't the meeting postponed until all of the aldermen could be present? Why wasn't the Republican City Chairman present? Why, if Mayor Schwenk was so concerned, didn't he indicate who he preferred for the job? This is part of the responsibility of leadership, to take a stand, not back away from it, and abdicate responsibility.

"As far as following normal procedure is concerned, this the common council did in accordance with the Rules of The Assembly. If Mayor Schwenk feels that vacancies should be filled with appointments from the party occupying the seat at the time of the vacancy, this is certainly a departure from his action in the past. I would like to remind him that it was he who appointed Mr. Daniel Bittner a Republican, to fill the vacancy created on the Board of Supervisors in the Eighth Ward, by the death of Richard Hinkley. Mr. Hinkley was a Democratic supervisor elected by the people of the Eighth Ward. Why the double set of standards Mayor?

"Concerning the mayors reluctance to appoint the Republican candidate for alderman in the Ninth Ward, I can only say that this is an indication that Mayor Schwenk is again short on leadership or lacks confidence in the candidates ability to do the job.

"In conclusion, let me state that I am available for consultation if Mayor Schwenk wants to appoint a Democrat to fill this vacancy. I doubt very much that I will be hearing from him?"

Capsule Look At Hurricane Betsy Damage

MIAMI — Hurricane Betsy gusted to an official 105 miles per hour peak at Miami before dawn today. Despite the wind's fury, indications were that flooding would account for the most damage. Miami Beach tides averaged about five feet above the average. The Miami River overflowed its banks that wind through the city.

About 25,000 telephones were reported out of service and half the central telephone exchange operated on emergency generator power.

FORT LAUDERDALE — Winds gusting to a reported 115 miles per hour broke store display windows, blew over concrete benches and sent sheets of water across highways and into homes and hotels. Water and sand dunes blocked seashore highway A1A to Palm Beach. The intracoastal Waterway lined with expensive homes, spilled over its banks south of Pompano Beach.

KEYS — Planataion Key, small community in the upper Florida Keys, was flooded twice during Hurricane Betsy's two-hour passage. Homes were invaded first by water from Florida Bay, on the Gulf of Mexico side, then by the Atlantic Ocean. A 140-m.p.h. wind gust was reported at Plantation Key. Many residents of the keys chose to stay in their homes.

By daybreak the storm still had not reached Key West, the resort city and naval base at the end of the Florida Keys.

FORT PIERCE — City, county and state road department crews hauled sand to reinforce dune breakwaters being pounded by highwaves.

The citrus industry feared scarring from the wind, particularly of grapefruit.

STUART — A gusty mid-afternoon squall ripped awnings, toppled trees and washed away a pier in the St. Luci River.

Cubans Evacuate Northern Areas As Betsy Churns

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Havana Radio said today that thousands of families were evacuated from the north coast of Las Villas, Matanzas, Havana and Pinar del Rio provinces in Cuba because of Hurricane Betsy.

Waves, winds and rains generated by Betsy were expected to hit the north Cuban coast, flooding low areas, the broadcast said.

Motorists Cited After Crashes

Two motorist were cited by Kingston State Police on charges of failure to keep to the right, following separate one-car mishaps early today.

Trooper W. E. Wiedmann reported Helen Hodgson, 19, of Wawwarsing, was driving her car west on Route 28 at 1:20 a. m., when the vehicle failed to negotiate a right turn and went off the west of the pavement.

The woman was summoned by Trooper John Kohland, authorities said.

At 12:15 a. m. Larry Eugene Vogler, 24, Glasco, was driving north on Route 32 near Glasco, when the vehicle went out of control on the left side of the highway, knocked down several guard posts, hit a tree and went up an embankment.

Troopers Craig Bremer and John McMickle investigated. Vogler was summoned for failure to keep to the right, according to Trooper Wiedmann.

Goat Is Lassoed In Car Showroom After Wild Chase

It looked as though the wild goat of the pampas had invaded Kingston today to wreak death and destruction in his path—until he was lassoed by employes of Byrne's Chevrolet.

Mechanics and servicemen managed to corner the beast shortly before noon in the automobile showroom on 731 Broadway. The goat had been jumping and prancing all over the site for about 20 minutes.

No one at the firm had any idea where the goat came from, but officials said they had heard there "were four goats running around the city all morning." It is believed the goats were being transported to the Catskill Game Farm when they somehow tore themselves loose.

Byrne's officials contacted the ASPCA and local police to cart the goat off to an environment more disposed to his own temperament.

Thant to Offer Own Peace Plans To Warring Two

GENEVA (AP)—U.N. Secretary-General U Thant said today he will put his own peace proposals before the Indian and Pakistan governments.

During a one-hour stopover at Geneva en route to Pakistan, Thant told newsmen: "I have certain suggestions to put to both sides."

He declined to elaborate.

Hurrying to Pakistan and India on his peace mission, he stopped over briefly in London and conferred with Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart.

The two delved into the problem of stopping the fighting between India and Pakistan.

Stewart reassured Thant that Prime Minister Harold Wilson's government was firmly behind the secretary-general's peacekeeping mission.

Stewart and Thant both said they had found the discussion useful.

Thant flew here from New York.

Answers Your Insurance Questions

QUESTION: If a person is involved in an auto accident and has a court judgment against him for more than the amount of his insurance, does he have to pay the difference?

ANSWER: He most certainly does and sometimes it takes many years to get it paid. Another good reason for carrying plenty of liability insurance.
